FTC studies accountants

Washington (UPI) — The Federal Trade Commission Thursday announced a nationwide investigation of the accounting industry to determine if consumers are being overcharged with the $2 billion they spend every year for tax help and other services.

The agency cited advertising restrictions, domination of the business by eight firms, and rules that limit the numbers of accountants as particular targets of its probe.

About that job, Jimmy . . .

Washington (AP) — The young woman who asked President Carter during his March 5 radio phone-in how she could get a federal job has been hired by the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

The bureau announced Thursday that Leslie Pfenniger will start work Monday as assistant curator of its museum.

The position will exist for 4½ months, paying $9,300 a year.

However, an agency spokeswoman said the bureau will try to hire Miss Pfenniger full time.

Bus fares unchanged

Washington (AP) — The Interstate Commerce Commission on Thursday blocked intercity bus fare raises that would have gone into effect at midnight. But it said that under certain conditions, it would approve temporarily the same 6% hike effective as early as Monday.

The commission told the bus industry that it can refile for the increase and receive it on a one-day notice, provided the boost expires May 30. In the meantime, the ICC said it would ask the industry to justify the full 13% increase that it seeks.

Amy camps out in back

Washington (UPI) — Amy Carter and a girl friend slept in Amy's tree house in the back yard of the White House two nights, President Carter disclosed Thursday.

Carter also told reporters in the aftermath of a formal televised news conference that he has been up in the tree house "a couple of times."

The tree house was designed by the President and completed about two weeks ago.

Panel okays Flaherty

Washington (UPI) — The Senate Judiciary Committee, with only Ohio Democrat Howard Metzenbaum dissenting, Thursday approved the nomination of Pittsburgh Mayor Peter Flaherty as deputy attorney general — the No. 2 job at the Justice Department.

Metzenbaum acknowledged that the nomination probably will breeze through the Senate. But he complained that Flaherty opposed school busing in Pittsburgh, and that for five years as mayor he hired no blacks or women for the police force until ordered to by a federal court.

Carter to attend NATO

Washington (AP) — President Carter, as expected, will attend a council meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in London on May 10, his press office announced Thursday.

The NATO session will be two days off the conclusion of Carter's London talks on economic matters with leaders of six other industrialized nations.

U.S., Cuba end 18-year silence

Washington (UPI) — The United States and Cuba have opened direct negotiations for the first time in more than 18 years, meeting in New York to discuss limits on offshore fishing, the State Department said Thursday.

The talks are considered a first step toward eventual re-establishment of relations between the two countries.

The State Department issued a statement saying:

"The governments of Cuba and the United States initiated Thursday in New York negotiations aimed at regulating questions concerning fisheries and maritime boundaries resulting from the promulgation of laws on these matters by both parties."

The U.S. delegation is headed by Terence A. Todman, who was confirmed Wednesday by the Senate as the new assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs.

The Cuban delegation, according to the State Department, is headed by Deputy Foreign Minister Pelegrin Torra.

The announcement said the talks will last more than a week.

Both the United States and Cuba extended their fishing zone to 200 miles on March 1. The two countries are separated by only 90 miles in the Florida straits.

President Carter and Secretary of State Cyrus Vance have said since the beginning of the new administration they are willing to negotiate with Cuba — without any preconditions — on such issues as the fishing limits and possibly also renewal of the anti-hijacking agreement renounced by President Fidel Castro last fall.

Plans for a baseball game in Cuba between an American major league team and a Cuban group fell through when no agreement could be reached on who should travel to Cuba — an all-star team or the New York Yankees.

On March 18, the Carter administration ended the 16-year travel ban for Americans going to Cuba. The same action was also applied to Cambodia, Vietnam and North Korea.

The United States and Cuba broke diplomatic relations in January 1961 and their long political and ideological enmity reached its climax later that year with the unsuccessful CIA-sponsored Bay of Pigs invasion. The Cuban Missile Crisis came a year later.

Switzerland has been representing U.S. interests in Havana since 1961. The Swiss are understood to have helped arrange the current direct negotiations.

The United States and Cuba seemed to be moving toward a gradual improvement of relations in 1975 after the Ford administration supported the lifting of the Cuban ban by the Organization of American States.

But that process ground to a halt when Cuba openly supported a faction in Angola by sending some 15,000 soldiers to the former Portuguese colony in late 1975.

City work efficiency scrutinized

By Gordon Winters
Star Staff Writer

Six months ago 25-year-old Cindy Simon was toiling away as a secretary deep in the city's bureaucracy.

Today, thanks to a new program, her working life has been transformed. She is a work analyst, investigating the efforts of refuse crews and other workers in the interests of increased efficiency.

She received a substantial raise in the move to the newly created position, up to $962 a month. Like eight other analysts who receive the same salary, she works under the direction of a consulting firm that holds a $45,000 contract with the city.

The work analysts have been at their jobs since last October. If the program lasts for a year (the Boosalis administration envisions it as an ongoing program) it will have cost between $150,000 and $170,000.

Most members of the City Council, however, said this week that they were unaware that a program of this magnitude had been established, and thus another conflict may be brewing between council members and Mayor Helen Boosalis.

"How it got this far I don't know," said Councilman Bob Sikyta. "I didn't know we were going to put employees to work full-time" on the task.

"I have the gut feeling that it's gone beyond what the council agreed to because of the amount of money involved," said Council Chairman Max Denney.

"I didn't think it would be that voluminous," said Councilman Steve Cook. "I'll be damned," said Councilman Dick Baker when informed of the scope of the program. "So many things are happening without council knowledge these days."

Mayor Boosalis and members of her staff stand firmly behind the program, nonetheless, and contend that if council members don't know what the program entails, they haven't been

Mrs. Boosalis said that the council had the chance during last summer's budget sessions to cut the appropriation to hire the consultant. As recently as Jan. 10 the analysts were mentioned when former Public Works Director Bob Obering briefed the council on the activities of that department, Mrs. Boosalis said.

Mrs. Boosalis and her staff are hoping that the program in Lincoln will duplicate the 10 to 20% savings they say has been achieved in other cities that tried similar programs.

If the program is successful in Lincoln, the possible savings are $360,000 to $720,000 in the areas where the work analysis is being performed — public works, utilities and parks and recreation, according to Reid Charles, the mayor's administrative director.

No savings can yet be attributed to the program, according to Dick Pinsky, of the Boose

Allen and Hamilton consulting firm, because it is still in its first phase, in which information is being gathered, analyzed and ideas to increase productivity are formulated.

During this phase, work analysts observe work crews and make entries in log books at regular intervals, noting what the workers were doing. Later they can peruse this information in the office.

In the second phase, set to begin this summer, the ideas will be implemented. At that time another contract will be negotiated with the Boose, Allen and Hamilton firm, with an agreed top limit of $20,000.

No new city positions were created when the work analysts were recruited. Duties were juggled around to cover the vacancies left by the departed personnel.

On this point Cook observes that if nine employees can be given new jobs without creating new positions, "there must be some excess somewhere." Mrs. Boosalis replies that "some things are not being done in the departments the employees left."

Not all council members feel that the administration has left them in the dark on the program. Councilman Bob Jeambey said he feels the program is "within the scope of what the council approved" last summer.

Councilwoman Sue Bailey thinks the possible savings are worth the investment. When people have been doing things the same way for a long time, routines assume the "aura of religion" and no one questions if they could be improved, she said.

Councilman John Robinson, who admits his knowledge of the program is sketchy, said he isn't necessarily disturbed by the scope of the program, but adds, "There sure hasn't been much discussion."

Fugitive fled 'life without life'

Dallas (AP) — For 13 years, Robert Lee Beatty lived a clean, upstanding, law-abiding life. He had to. He was an escaped convict.

"I learned not to drive fast, not to drink, not to do anything that could get me arrested," he said. "I wouldn't even spit on the sidewalk."

This week, acting on a tip to the Oklahoma Bureau of Investigation, Dallas authorities arrested the 39-year-old father of five.

And Beatty, known as Robert "Buddy" Lee Haley since he escaped from an Oklahoma prison in 1963, said he was ready for it.

"I had to get my life straightened out . . . for my family's sake," he said. "I had no future as a fugitive. It was like a life without a life."

Beatty and his wife had two sons when he was sent to prison. Since his escape, he and his wife have had three daughters.

It was because of his wife and children that Beatty agreed it was best his life as a fugitive come to an end. But it also was because of his wife and children that he remained on the run for so long.

"I didn't have any money to appeal it (the conviction) in court and I didn't want to lose my wife and kids," he said. "I had to take the only recourse a poor man had."

Beatty waived extradition this week after Oklahoma officials assured him they would not prosecute on escape charges. He said he was told he could appear before the Oklahoma Pardon and Parole Board early next month and may be able to return to his family here soon.

Beatty had served one year of a 10-year sentence for horse theft when he was taken from the prison to an Oklahoma City hospital for treatment.

"I just walked out and kept walking," Beatty said.

He went first to Tennessee, where Memphis police arrested him on a traffic violation. He was released on bond before police discovered his true identity.

He obtained a driver's license in Illinois under the name Haley and then went to work harvesting crops, repairing roofs and buying and selling flea market items. He avoided payroll jobs and, when asked for a Social Security number, gave his Oklahoma prison number.

Amendments' disclosure effect disputed

By Don Walton
Star Staff Writer

Is the Legislature's Miscellaneous Subjects Committee dismantling the 1976 Nebraska Political Accountability and Disclosure Act?

Yes, says Sen. Dave Newell of Omaha.

No, says Sen. Richard Marvel of Hastings, author of a number of amendments which have been attached to proposed legislation to change provisions of the new campaign finance conflict of interest and lobbying disclosure law.

"I believe these changes would give the commission enough power to operate effectively," Marvel said Thursday.

"If it doesn't have sufficient power, it can come back in and tell us so."

Marvel said the new watchdog commission created by the 1976 law should have "reasonable powers" but not carte blanche authority to "go on fishing expeditions hoping to find something."

I remember the McCarthy-type hearings (of the 1950s) which damaged innocent people's reputations," Marvel said.

Newell said the amendments accepted by the committee "significantly restrict the power of the commission to meet and to investigate."

The majority of the members of the legislative committee are "hostile to the present law," he said, "and I believe public pressure is going to be needed to fight these changes on the floor" of the Legislature.

The amendments would wipe out the current law's requirement that the commission hire an executive director and would authorize the unit to employ its own lawyer only if the attorney general or the affected county attorney could not provide needed legal assistance.

The commission would be allowed to charge a person with a violation of the law only if it has "reasonable grounds based upon actual knowledge of fact."

Newell tried to substitute "reasonable" for "actual."

Marvel said he also plans to propose that the commission's investigative powers be transferred to the attorney general.

If the attorney general did not act upon charges brought by the commission within a certain time period, he said, his amendment would allow the commission to proceed with an investigation of its own.

The changes "significantly restrict the commission's prerogatives and power," Newell said, in effect "preventing the commission from investigating anything unless it is positive that violations have already occurred."

Marvel said he is attempting to bring the commission into "some kind of reasonable framework" within which it has sufficient power to hold public officials accountable for their actions.

"I know of no one in here (the Legislature) who would be afraid of a legitimate investigation," he said.

"And I believe these changes would leave the commission with plenty of ammunition and plenty of muscle to do its job."

The 1976 law was enacted largely in response to a petition drive launched by Common Cause and other organizations to seek an initiative vote on a "sunshine act" of their own.

The initiative effort was dropped after the Unicameral approved its own law.

PSC bill: Overregulation or reform?

By Lynn Zerachling
Star Staff Writer

Legislation designed to reform the Nebraska Public Service Commission pitted frustrated consumers against telephone companies Thursday and members of the PSC against one another.

Telephone subscribers from Roca to Plattsmouth told the Legislature's Appropriations Committee that LB449 would give them a chance to have poor telephone service improved.

Utilities representatives on the other hand, contended the proposed law would result in overregulation of not only the telephone industry, but of the trucking and railroad industries as well.

And as they have in the past, the elected members of the PSC reiterated old and sometimes bitter differences over how the former Railway Commission should be run.

The committee, in turn, took no action on the bill.

The bill's sponsors, U.S. Sen. Douglas Bereuter and Lincoln Sen. Steve Fowler, said LB449's contents are the result of an in-depth review of the PSC conducted at the Legislature's request. That study, Bereuter noted, concluded there is a drastic need for establishing written guidelines to set telephone and trucking rates and in opening the PSC up to public scrutiny.

In the past, Bereuter told his colleagues, commission actions "have given the appearance of not always acting in the public interest."

There are substantial pockets of problems within some of Nebraska's 49 separate telephone companies, he said.

LB449 would insure that more of those complaints about telephone company service, or the lack of it, would surface before the PSC by requiring:

— Publication in telephone books of how a customer can bring a complaint to the commission.

— Notification to telephone customers through bill inserts of future rate hearings before the PSC.

Fowler said he would rather receive an explanation of how rates are set with his monthly telephone bill instead of those entertaining Thought Twisters provided by the Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph Co.

David Duev, a banker from Plattsmouth, thinks those measures would help improve customer relations by forcing the utilities to deal with consumers.

LaRue Wunderlich of Roca, along with a half-dozen other disgruntled ratepayers, said she would be willing to put up with poor phone service if she knew the company would be forced to follow some of the other measures set down in the legislation, such as:

— Requiring the PSC to evaluate service when setting telephone rates and to consider complaints in the process.

— Requiring the PSC staff to inspect each telephone company at least once every three years.

— Requiring the PSC to secure compliance with its orders.

— Requiring the PSC to standardize rate setting.

PSC Commissioner Eric Rasmussen of Fairmont, often the lone dissenter in decisions taken by the other four commissioners, supported the portion of the bill which calls for strengthening the PSC's staff.

By divorcing the commission members from administrative duties, Rasmussen contended the PSC could sit as a judicial body in making decisions.

As usual, PSC Chairman Duane Gay of Columbus had the opposite point of view. Gay asserted LB449 would create a kind of "super secretary" who could usurp much of the elected members' authority.

The bill would result in overregulation of the telephone industry, Gay asserted, an argument also offered by utility company representatives.

John Hilsbreck, assistant vice president of Northwestern Bell in Omaha, said the regulations imposed upon the PSC under the bill would interfere with the commission into the daily management of telephone companies. Representatives of the Nebraska Motor Carriers Association and Nebraska railroads also opposed the bill.

India leader will show no favor for Soviets

New Delhi, India (AP) — India's new prime minister, 81-year-old Morarji Desai, took office Thursday and promptly announced a major foreign policy shift away from the country's traditional special relations with the Soviet Union.

"We won't have any special relations with any country," Desai said in a press conference minutes after he was sworn in as India's fourth prime minister since independence.

Desai, long considered pro-Western, said India would adopt a foreign policy of "proper nonalignment" and would seek changes in the 1971 Indo-Soviet friendship treaty if necessary.

"If the Indo-Soviet friendship treaty involves any want of friendship with others, then it will have to change," Desai said.

American officials in Washington were pleased with the selection of Desai. Despite his commitment to India's traditional nonalignment they expected him to seek better relations with the United States.

Desai was sworn in as prime minister by Acting President B. D. Jatti in a simple three-minute ceremony at the red sandstone presidential palace that was the residence of the British viceroys in the colonial era.

When reporters at the news conference took note of Desai's advanced age, he said he would quit the prime ministership "the day I feel I am not physically fit."

"I'll vacate immediately, even tomorrow," he added. "I'm not going to stay a moment longer than I'm needed. But what does age matter? It's the spirit that matters."

Desai, a veteran of India's independence movement, had told an interviewer in January that he wouldn't retire from politics "until I take my last breath."

In a procedure that sparked immediate dissension among the political parties that united to oust Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's Congress party in last week's general elections, Desai was handpicked for the top post by two other aging disciples of independence leader Mohandas Gandhi.

Desai's coming to power marked the end of Congress rule for the first time since independence in 1947 and the end of Mrs. Gandhi's own 11-year reign. It puts into power a firm moralist who for years has ruled his own life with iron-willed discipline.

Desai has been a strict vegetarian for years and says he has never had a drop of alcohol in his life. He lives on goat's milk, almonds and fruit and interrupts even this simple diet for 36 hours each week to keep chronic colitis in check.

India's new prime minister does not believe in modern medicine and presents problems to foreign immigration authorities because he refuses to be vaccinated against smallpox.

Desai supports sexual abstinence and says he himself has abstained since the birth of his fifth child in 1928. Only two of the five are still living.

Desai's assumption of the prime ministership climaxed a long political career in which he had thrice failed to get the top post when he was in the Congress party.

He failed in 1964, on the death of Jawaharlal Nehru, India's first prime minister; in 1966, on the death of Lal Bahadur Shastri, and in 1967, when he tried to unseat Mrs. Gandhi after general elections in which the Congress party suffered severe losses.

Mrs. Gandhi then made him her deputy prime minister, but he resigned from the government in 1969 after she took away his Finance Ministry portfolio. Desai left the Congress party a few months later.

Arms reductions top priority

(c) New York Times

Washington — President Carter said Thursday that Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance would give priority in Moscow next week to seeking Soviet agreement for "substantial reductions" in each side's level of strategic missiles and bombers as a way of breaking the 14-month impasse in arms control negotiations.

If a reduction cannot be achieved, Carter said the two sides, as a fallback position, should complete a treaty incorporating strategic weapons levels already agreed upon and leave aside issues in dispute for follow-on negotiations.

In his fourth press conference, Carter devoted most of his attention to foreign affairs and, in particular, to Vance's trip to Moscow that starts Friday and overall relations with the Russians, strained recently because of controversy over human rights.

He made these points on other subjects:

—The economy's "underlying" rate of inflation is at 5 to 6% but the current rate may be slightly higher, and he announced that "a very strong" anti-inflation package would be sent to Congress in the next two weeks.

—The Vietnamese had done "about all they can do" to account for missing American servicemen and this is why he agreed to begin negotiations to normalize relations. He said the United States had no obligation to pay reparations to the Vietnamese for war damage although he did not rule out eventual aid.

—The United States was working with the French and Belgians to keep the situation stable in Zaire, where he said the United States had no special commitment to help the former Belgian Congo. He said there was no evidence of Cubans involved in the fighting.

—The list of water projects planned for possible elimination would be "meticulously reviewed" in public hearings, he said, and denied that an "environmental clique" had been behind the recommendations, asserting that the Department of Interior and other concerned agencies had been involved in the decisions.

In addition to possible steps to break the deadlock on strategic arms limitation negotiations, Carter listed a rather full agenda for Vance in Moscow.

He said the agenda included mutual curbs on transfer of arms abroad. The United States was the number one exporter, he said, and in addition to restraint by American allies, "We hope to get the Soviet Union to agree with us on constraint."

Brezhnev had recently indicated an interest in curbing arms sales, giving some encouragement to administration officials.

In addition, Carter, without giving details, said there would be discussions on ways of moving along the deadlocked negotiations for mutual force reductions in Central Europe. He repeated that he hoped to persuade the Russians to agree on halting all underground nuclear tests although Brezhnev had just repeated that Moscow was not interested in a total ban unless the Chinese and others also agreed.

And Thursday morning, Vance met with presidents of major American Jewish organizations, and reportedly told them he would discuss with the Russians the question of Jewish emigration.

Alcohol sampled by 70% of teens

Washington (UPI) — About 70% of American high school students have tried alcoholic beverages.

And the number who get drunk has doubled in the last 20 years, a Senate subcommittee was told Thursday.

Dr. Ernest Noble, director of the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism, said this means about 17 million teenagers attending school have taken a drink, with boys exceeding girls by about 7%.

Noble said that only 59% of teenagers in the South have had a drink, compared with the 74 to 77% in other parts of the country. He speculated this is due to stronger parental control, more religious influence and more stable family institutions in that area.

About 5 million teens, or 21% of those surveyed, reported consuming five or more drinks per occasion, Noble said, while nearly 30% said they get drunk several times each year.

In the past 20 years, Noble said, the number of young people getting drunk has more than doubled — 45% now saying they have been drunk at least once compared with 19% in 1957, while 12% report getting drunk once a month compared with 5%.

The average age at which young people have their first drink has dropped from 13.6 years in 1965 to 12.9 years in 1975, according to Noble's presentation to the hearing on alcohol and drug abuse among younger people. He said 40% have tasted alcohol by age 10, and in one-third of the cases this was in the home.

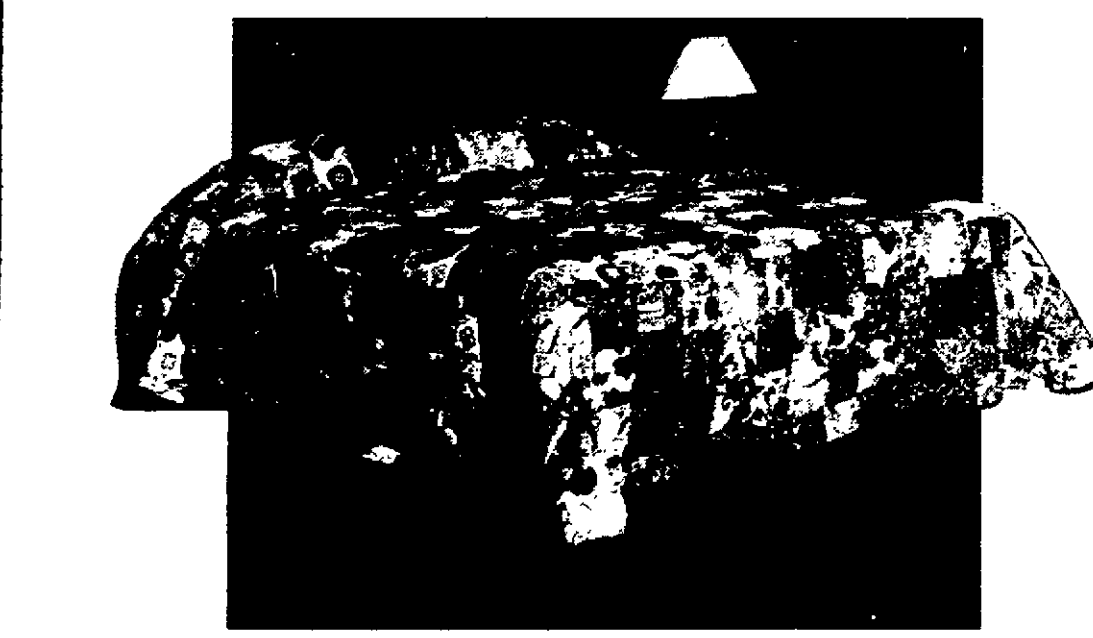

"To me that's appalling," commented Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah.

Dr. Robert DuPont, director of the National Institute of Drug Abuse, said he agreed with Noble's assessment of the drinking problems of teens and that alcohol and drug abuse have reached epidemic proportions.

A recent survey of fourth, fifth and sixth-graders in unidentified West Coast schools indicated 45% of the children consider themselves alcohol users.

But by far the most frequently used drug is marijuana, DuPont said, with 8% of high school seniors now reporting daily use.

Labor defeat dims future issues

Washington (AP) — Organized labor, outmaneuvered in its first congressional test this year, faces even more difficulty with other legislative goals such as repeal of state right-to-work laws, Democratic congressional leaders said Thursday.

"Labor is going to have to make an awfully convincing case to get anything else through, both with Congress and the public," said House Majority Leader James Wright.

The surprising defeat in the House on Wednesday night of a bill authorizing unrestricted picketing at construction sites dimmed chances for most major labor legislation in this session — and no one knew it better than labor's own lobbyists.

"We got caught with our pants down," said Victor Kamber, top lobbyist for the AFL-CIO Building and Construction Trades Department.

But, by the same token, Kamber and his fellow lobbyists predicted the sting of defeat would also work to stiffen labor's resolve.

"We may suffer for it initially, but we're not dead," he said. "Sure we're going to have to fight, and 14B is going to be more difficult, but it always was."

Fourteen-B, the section in the Taft-Hartley Act authorizing states to ban union shop agreements, is part of a broad legislative package being pushed by the AFL-CIO, along with the common situs picketing bill, an increase in the minimum wage and sweeping changes in federal law to make it easier for unions to organize and negotiate contracts.

While the picketing bill directly affected only the building trades, the vote was the first test of labor's clout in the new and heavily Democratic Congress, which organized labor helped elect.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. chided labor leaders before the vote for not mustering enough support for the bill and said, "I have no intention of scheduling 14B. I don't think the Senate will act on it either."

And, in a later postmortem, O'Neill said the leadership apparently was persuaded to rush the bill through by some optimistic reports from labor. He vowed that won't happen again.

"It's an old rule of politics that you should not field the team unless you will win," the speaker lamented.

Contractors, home builders and right-to-work advocates were among the groups that mounted what O'Neill described as the most intensive lobbying effort he had ever seen. "My office alone received 50,000 letters."

The picketing bill, which would have allowed workers on strike against one subcontractor to picket the entire job site, was rejected by the House on a vote of 217 to 205. A similar bill passed Congress last year only to be vetoed by then-President Gerald R. Ford under urgings from the same groups.

Because last year's measure passed the House by a wide margin, labor figured it would pass the House easily this year with the toughest fight in the Senate.

"We miscalculated," said Kamber. "We knew last week the vote was getting tight and the opposition was mounting a very effective campaign against us, but we thought we could prevail in the House and the battle was still in the Senate."

Both labor and the Democratic leadership agreed that the big mistake was a failure to lobby "back home." The other side did.

A spokesman for the Associated Builders and Contractors, one of the groups leading the fight against the bill, estimated the lobbying campaign cost about $1 million.

Associated Builders and Contractors alone hired five public relations firms to set up radio and television interviews, design mailgrams and purchase newspaper ads.

Thousands of preprinted postcards were sent to the organization's employer members with instructions to distribute them in workers' pay envelopes and have their superintendents collect the signed cards for mailing to House members. Contractors were flown in to meet face-to-face with their own congressmen.

"We knew we had the votes as far back as March 18, and we had 200 votes at that time that were solid," said Scott Robertson, the contractor group's spokesman.

Robertson compared vote counts with Kamber over dinner shortly before the final vote was taken. "They were exactly the same," Robertson said. "They were really scared."

Labor Secretary Ray Marshall had endorsed the bill as one that would bring stability to bargaining in the construction industry. He charged that its defeat was the result of a strong campaign "motivated more by an anti-union animus than the issue involved."

Nebraska Democrat Rep. John Cavanaugh and Republican Reps. Virginia Smith and Charles Thone all voted against the bill.

Ford welcomed by Carter at White House.

Ford found Washington visit was just like the old days

Washington (AP) — It was just like the old days Thursday for Gerald Ford Police escort. Secret Service cars in front and back of his limousine. Sitting in front of a fire in the Oval Office.

Only this time it was Jimmy Carter's Oval Office and Ford was a guest.

"You got me off to a good start," said Carter as he greeted his predecessor in the White House driveway. "You look so healthy and tanned, I'm envious."

Ford replied, "You're looking good yourself."

It was Ford's first visit to the capital and the White House since he left office two months and four days ago. He was in Washington to see his new office at the American Enterprise Institute for Public Policy Research, a conservative think tank that has named him a Distinguished Fellow.

The visit with Carter was cordial but Ford was so solemn that he almost looked grim.

In the presence of photographers and reporters the two men chatted about foreign affairs, the President commenting that British Prime Minister James Callaghan had "apparently a tight squeeze" in winning a vote of confidence in parliament.

Carter started to tell Ford that the United States was working on international airline negotiations with the British but Ford, an old hand at that kind of thing, interjected, "I'm familiar with it."

Carter told his predecessor that he had had "good visits" with Callaghan, Japan's Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda and Canada's Pierre Trudeau.

When Ford arrived at his government-furnished transition office across the street from the White House, there was a sizable crowd on the sidewalks and reporters jockeying for position. Just like the old days.

About the only thing missing as he and Mrs. Ford returned was the presidential seal on the side of the car door.

He got out of the car carrying his own briefcase — a large one he's had since his congressional days.

It was still like old times when Ford went to his office in the American Enterprise Institute for Public Policy Research, a conservative think-tank that has named him a "distinguished fellow." There, he held a mini-news conference, complete with a press Secretary signaling when it was time to go.

Ford wouldn't comment on how President Carter is doing.

"Because of the unique position I think I hold," he said, "I feel very strongly it would be inappropriate for me to enter into what might be construed by some as partisan political nit-picking."

Carter, he said, "ought to have time to tackle the problems, which are immense." Carter "ought to have the best chance possible to do the best job."

The institute had done its best to make the office, on the 5th floor of a downtown building, seem like home.

There were Ford-as-President, Ford-as-family man color pictures on the wall. The pipe rack on a table back of his desk had been thoughtfully stocked with two never-smoked briar pipes.

Carter's wage proposal upsets Meany

Washington (AP) — The Carter administration proposed on Thursday that the minimum wage be increased from $2.30 to $2.50 starting in July, compared to a $3 minimum sought by organized labor.

The administration also proposed that beginning in July 1978 and in future years, the minimum wage be set at 50 per cent of the average straight-time, hourly wage of manufacturing workers.

The proposed 20-cent hike was a disappointment to organized labor and many congressional Democrats who want an immediate 70-cent increase, with future increases pegged at 60 per cent of average hourly manufacturing wages.

"The administration proposal is shameful," said George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO. "This is a bitter disappointment to everyone who looked to this administration for economic justice for the poor."

Meany said Carter's minimum worked out to an hourly rate 38 cents below the poverty level and 33 cents an hour less than what is needed to maintain the 1974 buying power of the minimum wage worker.

Meany said the 50 per cent indexing provision would guarantee that minimum wage workers "will be permanently locked into poverty."

The minimum wage has been $2.30 an hour since January 1976 for workers in manufacturing, industrial and mining jobs and since January of this year for employees of retail and service industries.

The minimum had reached the $2 level in 1974 for the first group of workers, climbing to $2.10 in January 1975. Those in service and retail occupations gained a $2 minimum in January 1975 and a $2.20 base a year later.

In disclosing the Carter administration's recommendation, Marshall told the House Labor Standards subcommittee that the administration had "carefully reviewed" the labor and Democratic proposals. But he said that "in light of current economic conditions, a somewhat different approach is warranted at this time."

Marshall later told reporters he had urged that the administration seek a minimum higher than the $2.50 level. He said he didn't know whether President Carter would sign or veto a higher minimum, if Congress approved it.

Parents of 'Moonies' may deprogram

San Francisco (UPI) — Five families Thursday won custody of their adult children for "deprogramming" from the Rev. Sun Myung Moon's Unification Church. That ended a legal battle the judge said was unprecedented in American history.

Superior Court Judge S. Lee Vavuris also refused a request by the Children's attorney to ban deprogramming of his clients who range in age from 21 to 26 years.

"I'm not making any restraints on that," said Vavuris, who granted the petitions of the parents for 30-day custody of their offspring despite the youngsters' pleas that their freedom of religion was being denied.

The judge ruled the temporary guardianship would go into effect Monday. He left the deprogramming issue to the parents but said they "must be present at all times."

Professional deprogrammers were represented in the case by an attorney for the "Freedom of Thought Foundation in Tucson, Ariz., where, some 'Moonies' claimed, they were forcibly restrained and subjected to brainwashing.

Both sides argued in the two-week hearing that the other used brainwashing.

Despite a plea by the children's attorney Paul Goorjian, who said, "Please don't turn them over to the wolves," Vavuris said he trusted the parents to look after the well-being of their offspring.

"We are talking about the essence of civilization — mother, father and children," the judge said. "There's nothing like it. I know of no greater love than parents for their children, and I am sure the parents would not submit their children to harm."

"A child is a child even though a parent may be 90 and the child, 60."

Vavuris granted Goorjian's request that the youngsters have access to attorneys and materials by the Korean Evangelist's church during the 30-day period. He also said he would welcome an appeal in the case because, he said, the legal dispute is "unprecedented."

Goorjian's co-counsel, Ralph Baker, said in closing arguments, "A lot of young minds have been tampered with and broken. I just can't believe we're trying this case in the United States of America."

Drought aid praised; only a partial solution

President Carter's drought aid package has won praise from Nebraska officials who see in it an illustration that the President is quick to listen and accurately perceive local problems and conditions. High marks were also given the administration for proposing steps to make the delivery of relief more efficient.

While asking Congress for over $800 million to fund the emergency loan and grant program giving aid to those stricken by the western and plains states drought, administration officials surveyed the prolonged drought's economic impact.

Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus noted that weather conditions have a greater impact on consumer prices than anything else.

He also warned that "water squandering practices of the past" must end.

Heeding that simple warning is of enormous importance.

Drought aid in the form of loans and grants will give temporary relief only.

Long-term conservation practices which will hedge against the vicissitudes of weather are of greater importance.

Interest bill moves ahead

Somebody goofed a few weeks ago when figures were produced asserting that small loan companies in Nebraska suffered a net loss in 1975.

That testimony was presented in behalf of legislation, LB18, which would raise small loan interest rates and extend repayment periods from three years to a full six years. Interest charges would skyrocket under the latter feature.

After rechecking figures, the State Department of Banking found that not only did small loan companies in Nebraska enjoy net earnings of $304,663 in 1975 (rather than showing a loss), but earnings rose to $834,568 in 1976. Thus small loan company profits more than doubled under the existing rate structure.

Regardless, after receiving that information the Legislature's Banking, Commerce and Insurance Committee advanced LB18 to the floor where it awaits action by the full Unicameral.

A bill proposing similar interest rate and repayment period increases was passed by the Legislature last year, but was successfully vetoed by Gov. Jim Exon.

If Banking Committee action, taken in the face of evidence that industry profits have doubled under current rates, is any evidence, LB18 should be a shoo-in for passage again this year.

Why such legislation — which further, and in our opinion unreasonably, enriches the lenders at the expense of the people who can least afford to be enslaved by interest payments — would find great acceptance in the Legislature is beyond explanation.

The small loan companies are making a go of it. Credit is available to people, even the so-called "higher-risk consumers". Those people are in the hole far enough as it is.

Nebraska lawmakers have no justification for approving LB18. The small loan industry is in good shape — in much healthier economic condition than most of the people it does business with, we'll bet. If the bill finds its way to passage, senators will have taken leave of conscience.

In that event, it is hoped that Gov. Exon retains his, and that another veto would be forthcoming.

Exon proposes tree policy

It took some doing, but the State Roads Department finally came up with an accounting of roadside trees taken out during a controversial program designed to remove hazards to motorists.

The number of trees removed during the two years the program has been in effect: 3,337. That may have been two or three thousand too many.

Gov. Exon has ordered the tree cutting stopped and says it will not be resumed until he okays guidelines for removing only those trees which pose a definite threat to motorist safety.

The State Highway Commission today will consider Exon recommendations that the commission hold public hearings in advance of tree removal projects; that workmen not be permitted to remove any trees without authorization of the director of the department and the highway commission; that any cutting more than 30 feet from the roadway be prohibited unless there is written permission from the governor and that two trees be planted in the general area of every one removed.

These recommendations seem strong enough to curtail what both Gov. Exon and Roads Director Tom Doyle agreed was an overzealous attitude on the part of department crews and supervisors.

Interested citizens and groups are to be commended for bringing the tree removal program excesses to the public's attention. Official response at the top has also been commendable.

Japan and tariffs

Marquis Childs

Several factors must be taken into account. One is Japan's extraordinary organizing ability. I recall visiting a Sony plant, staffed mostly by women workers, who were turning out recording devices at a tempo that made the hand seem quicker than the eye.

Another reason is the singular irony of what defeat in the war meant as against victory. The steel plants of pre-1940, largely destroyed by American bombers, were replaced by new and more efficient processes. Much of the U.S. steel industry now operating at about 67% of capacity is still using pre-war techniques.

But above all is the capacity of an island people who must export to live for work. They are workaholics with a discipline that has put a defeated and ruined nation of 1945 alongside West Germany and the United States.

A frequent complaint is that Japan, spending roughly only about one per cent of her gross national product as against seven or eight per cent for the United States, is taking a free ride under the American protective umbrella.

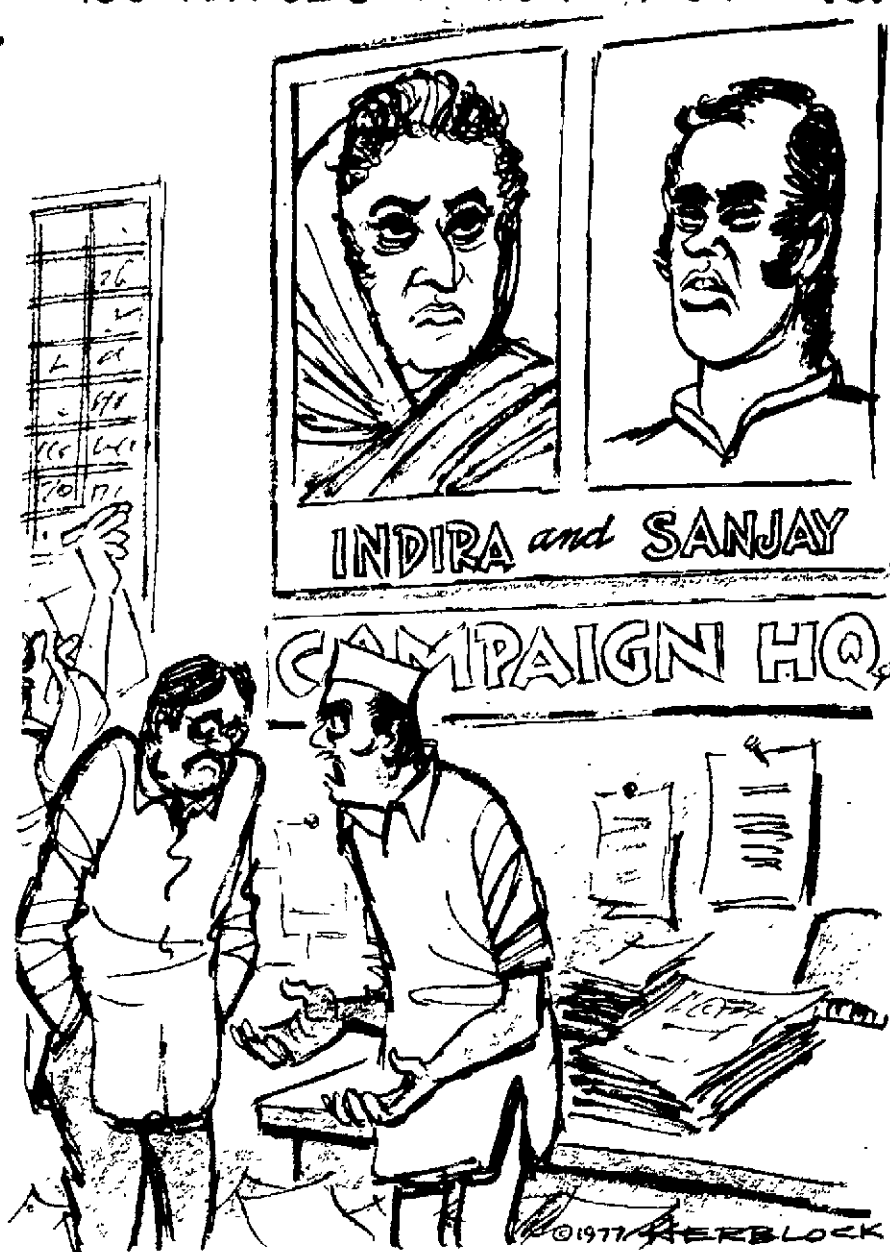

But they are following the injunction served on them at the time of surrender by Gen. Douglas MacArthur. They were to abjure the militarism that came to a climax with Pearl Harbor. One has only to ask how we would feel if the Japanese were engaged in getting their own nuclear weapons with the skill and the capacity which they could unquestionably muster.

Prime Minister Fukuda represents the solid center of his Liberal-Democratic party. Badly damaged by the Lockheed scandal, a previous prime minister was forced to resign. Fukuda has escaped comparatively unscathed. Nevertheless, the bribery scandal will figure in an upcoming election. It has bred an animus against the United States that the Fukuda visit can help to overcome.

Lumped together with Western Europe and the United States, it is sometimes forgotten that Japan is an Asian nation and the ties to Asia, both economic and political, are of the first importance. Friend and ally and vigorous competitor, Japan can be a bridge across the Pacific for an American that has suffered so many blows in that part of the world.

"THAT'S THE TROUBLE WITH FREE ELECTIONS
—YOU CAN'T BE SURE WHO THEY'LL VOTE FOR"

Freedom had deep roots in India

Anthony Lewis

Boston — There is a school of gloom among Democratic political thinkers, typified by some comments of Daniel Patrick Moynihan. "Democracy on the American model," he wrote two years ago, is on the way to becoming "a holdover form of government, one which persists in isolated or peculiar places . . . but which has simply no relevance to the future. It is where the world was, not where it is going."

For those who hold that gloomy view, it is more than a political science abstraction. It may affect, for example, their view of Soviet power and intentions. Senator Moynihan, in opposing Paul Warnke as arms control negotiator, said he based his vote on the belief that the "balance of world power is changing" toward the Soviets.

Again Moynihan, a former ambassador to India, was ready to have the U.S. write that country off as soon as Indira Gandhi took dictatorial power. In an interview published in Playboy Magazine this month he said:

"When India ceased to be a democracy, our actual interest there just plummeted. I mean, what does it export but communicable disease?"

The election returns in India this week swung Moynihan from gloom to euphoria. "Political democracy," he said, "has reasserted its claim on the future of the world."

But true historical trends are not so changeable, and the world's future is not so instantly transformed. The gloom was overdone in the first place. Democracy is not so weak — not in relation to the Soviet Union any more than it turned out to be inside India. And the strength of democracy is not to be measured in weapons alone.

The great point about the Indian election is that it was a victory of ideas. Freedom was in a contest with the claims of order and a full stomach, and freedom won. Millions of desperately poor people preferred the risks of freedom to Mrs. Gandhi's achievement in making the trains run on time.

It is important to take a steady and realistic view of democracy's strength in the world, not claiming too much or too little. India is not a pattern for different societies. In her history, freedom had taken root. Americans should have learned by now how futile it is to expect Western democracy to flourish in cultures where it has no roots: in Vietnam, say, or Angola.

But there is no reason for believers in democracy to lack self-confidence. That is surely the lesson, for Americans, of the Indian election. And I think the same point is to be seen in President Carter's bold words on behalf of human rights in the world, and in the Soviet Union's reaction to them.

Washington — The Central Intelligence Agency has conducted a secret survey of the flood of petrodollars into the United States. Over the past three years, according to the CIA survey, the oil-producing countries have invested an astounding $34 billion in U.S. holdings.

Some CIA analysts fear this prodigious financial stake could influence U.S. action in any future Middle East crisis. The nation's most influential financial leaders, the analysts suggest, might feel compelled to support the Arab cause.

For example, the OPEC nations have entrusted their portfolios to the nation's largest banks, particularly Chase Manhattan, Morgan Guaranty, Bank of America and New York's First National City Bank.

Thus the Arab oil potentates have become big customers of these powerful banks. Presumably this will heighten their sympathy for the Arab viewpoint. For, once the Arabs get a hold on a banker's pocketbook, his heart and mind will usually follow.

Yet the petrodollars have been channeled discreetly into the U.S. economy. With the single exception of the Shah of Iran, the oil potentates have been careful to avoid purchasing controlling interests in American firms.

The rise and fall of the stockmarket, plus deposit withdrawals and other transactions, have reduced the value of the $34 billion OPEC investment in the United States by $2 billion, according to the CIA. The CIA estimate is that the oil-producing nations are pumping about 20 per cent of their available funds into this country.

At first, most of the money, according to confidential Treasury Dept. documents, was put into "commercial banks as short-term deposits," thus creating "widespread fear that a sudden withdrawal or shifting of these deposits would lead to a collapse of certain banking institutions."

But around mid-1975, the OPEC countries began to concentrate more on long-term holdings. Their financial power, meanwhile, has been slowly increasing in the executive suites of America.

President Carter's pledge to fill only three out of every four vacant government positions, it turns out, won't apply to his own political appointees. The President can appoint about 1,000 top executives at salaries ranging from $47,500 to $66,000 annually. An internal White House memo reveals that all these positions will be filled as fast as the Republicans vacate them, not just three out of four.

being able to keep the lid on. In this sense it was hardly a self-confident speech.

In short, the President's words and the reaction they have evoked demonstrate how powerful the idea of freedom can be. And that demonstration seems to me to go a long way, in itself, toward justifying Carter's policy. For this country and its friends in the world have needed renewed confidence in our ideas.

The Times of London spoke the other day of the need in the United States not only to "re-engage the domestic support for detente which Dr. Kissinger lost" but also to "regain some of the ideological appeal which the United States once had in the world." Carter, it said, had "to do something to restore the confidence of the West. It is no bad thing to remind people what they are supposed to be defending."

But the main effect of Carter's words must be on his own people. After the dark years in which many of us became ashamed of things done in America's name, it is good to hear a president denounce torture and inhumanity. We know there are limits to what we can do for the victims. But we would be poor heirs to the Declaration of Independence if we did not believe in the eventual power of words.

With no water, there would be no food

The ownership

Mason City, Neb.
Regarding Richard Dill's letter in the Mar. 18 Star, "Two bills on water," his "letter smacks of socialism!" There are countries that have socialism, and he is welcome to go there, but I object when he wants to subject us to total socialism. The public now claims ownership of all flowing waters in Nebraska and that should be sufficient.

When we purchased our land and the water it contains, it is OURS! We own it and pay taxes on it, and his outrageous suggestion that we should be paying extra tax on the water shows his obvious lack of understanding and appreciation.

The farmers today are producing this abundance of food at little or no profit. The high cost of production and high risk factor now have agriculture in great jeopardy. If Mr. Dill takes the water, he will go hungry.

DISTURBED

icy viaduct
Lincoln, Neb.
After seeing the picture and article about the accident that took Victor Johnson's life on the viaduct just north of the university campus, it really hit home. That picture could very well have been of my daughter and her husband that same night.

As they were going over the viaduct by Archer Daniels Midland on 70th and Cornhusker, it was lucky that there were no other cars coming or going at that time. After going a fourth of the way up on dry pavement, all at once they hit ice. They slid from one side of the bridge to the other across both lanes, and finally ended up facing the opposite direction facing a car just coming up the viaduct.

All the rest of Cornhusker was clear of ice. Just the bridge was icy. They were on their way home. Seeing a patrolman in Waverly, they reported this to him. But the next morning there was no evidence that the bridge had been salted or sanded.

Now, my question is: Why on earth doesn't the city get these bridges and viaducts salted when they know these are dangerous areas when ice-covered? An icy highway is bad enough, but on a viaduct, you have nowhere to go. Surely these patrolmen could check these areas before these senseless mishaps occur.

My daughter and son-in-law travel over this bridge every night after work as do many others. I hope this bridge and others like it get some attention next time we have icy conditions, before this happens again and another life is snuffed out.

FEELING VERY LUCKY

Credit where due
Lincoln, Neb.

In reading the article in the "Lifescope" section of the March 18 Star, I was rather perturbed. The real "wheel-turner" behind Don Young is his supervisor, Mrs. Dorothy Lougee. Before Mr. Young was hired to relieve the situation, Mrs. Lougee was doing the heaviest part of this program herself. That can be checked with some of the people she helps who went to bat for her.

Some months ago, I suggested in a phone call to one of The Star staff that I felt a few words of praise were due a very hard-working, conscientious, unassuming heroine who was Mrs. Lougee. She has put in a lot of hours, tears, worry and dedication to a program for people who many times are forgotten in our world of "norms." It is this program that Don Young stepped into, via Mrs. Lougee.

I don't mean to take anything away from Mr. Young, but I have been well acquainted with Mrs. Lougee and some of her volunteers for a number of years and am familiar with her programs and the love and devotion the people in the program have for her, and her "caring" about what happens to them. It seems ironic that Mr. Young is showered with bouquets that rightfully belong first to Mrs. Lougee and then perhaps Mr. Young. Why has no one the forefront and interest to start at the beginning, then proceed on to the others? Someone missed the ball on this assignment. The article is fine and well written, but on the wrong person.

Right to be born
Lincoln, Neb.

I am a Birthright volunteer and believe it is the right of every child to be born. I am sure that many people in Lancaster County share my conviction. Therefore, I think it should be brought to their attention that the number of abortions performed per year in our county has decreased over the last two years.

The Nebraska Bureau of Vital Statistics records show there were 461 abortions performed in Lancaster County in 1974. In 1975 there were 435 — 26 fewer than in 1974. 1976 statistics showed 19 fewer performed last year than in 1975.

It is encouraging that there was a decrease. Hopefully, 1977 will bring an even greater decline in the number of abortions — a small but significant victory for all who respect the life of the unborn.

JULIE A. GRIMSTAD

Someone cared
Lincoln, Neb.

I was deeply struck by the significant juxtaposition of two letters in The Star on Mar. 18. A letter decrying the atrocities of abortions wherein living human beings are " . . . dropped into a bucket and left, moving, breathing and even crying, to die," was followed by a letter from a dog-owner who drove her dying pet " . . . 50 miles to a veterinarian . . . in the hope of saving its life after it had been cruelly shot."

I sympathize with the lady who lost her dog. At least she can be consoled that it died with someone caring about it. That's more than aborted babies get. What happens to them shouldn't happen to a dog.

Fran Minard
Lincoln, Neb.

It isn't very often that the voters get the opportunity to put a dedicated and conscientious person on a public board. We have this opportunity in the case of the Airport Authority. Fran Minard is a person who not only is extremely capable but who also uses his talents in a manner that is favorable to those he represents — in this case, the public.

He has performed well in filling out the term of Bob Phillips and is now secretary of the Airport Authority board.

I have known Fran personally for many years and my confidence in his abilities has been reaffirmed many times by his service on other public boards and civic organizations.

Fran's service on the Lincoln Chamber, in Sertoma and other city boards shows well his interest in developing a good city for us to live in.

Grateful for benches
Lincoln, Neb.

This is a note of thanks for the benches on 13th Street. I broke two fingers and also had a bad cold. A neighbor took me to my doctor at 13th and P Streets. I called when I was ready to come home. I was grateful for the nice bench in front of the Stover candy store where I sat and waited. Another lady was there and was rubbing her knees. She said she did not know how much farther she could have walked without a long rest on the comfortable bench.

Both of us were happy as we are both long past 75. It was more important to sit and rest after a doctor's appointment than gadding all day in town and then complaining that there was no place to sit. We two go only when necessary.

By Stan Delaplane

San Francisco — "Into each life some rain must fall," sang the song writer. But into our lives rain doesn't fall enough. I shouted up the stairs: "One minute in the shower! That's all. Hear the word?"

When we had plenty of water I had to wrestle the moppets into taking a bath. Now we're short of water in the Golden State, they'd stay under a shower all day if I'd let them.

So to press. First the good news. If you are going to get married, do it in Maine or Vermont, North and South Dakota or Washington, D.C.

Marriages in these ever-loving states have odds of 7-to-1 against divorce.

Get married in California or Arizona, you've only an even money bet. You only live once, so live it wisely.

The shortage of water is bringing a few snakes down out of the hills. They pick up a trickle or two from sneaky people who go out at night and run an illegal hose over the browning gardens.

Since a snake has no eyelids, its eyes are always open. Possibly this is where we get "wise as a serpent."

With eyes open constantly, a snake misses nothing.

We haven't given much attention to snakes recently. But there aren't many snake stories. When we find a snake in the garden, that's neighborhood news.

A famous publisher of a famous newspaper had an aversion to snakes. He ordered his editors never to let the word appear in the paper.

Consequently many people were snake-bitten and no one the wiser.

This is the Chinese Year of the Serpent. I have always wondered how that famous publisher of that famous newspaper handled a year like that.

Though marriages are better in some states than others, the odds on marriage are worse than single and double zero roulette.

Yet Reno — Greatest Little City in the World — has five times as many marriages as it has divorces.

Reno has the reputation of being the divorce capital of the U.S. But fact is five times more people come there to get hitched than split.

All up and down Virginia Street these same people know all the odds of the hard-way-eight. Then they walk out and pick the odds on matrimony.

It's not like it was the only game in town

In London — and that's a poor town for wedlock, too — Hildegard M. sued Mike M. for divorce.

"Don't eat the fruit pie with your fingers, luv," she said to Mike

Mike then picked up the entire pie and shoved it in her mouth.

"Don't talk with your mouth full," he said.

"Granted," said the judge.

Aristotle said the best marrying ages were 18 for women, 37 for men. He didn't say how he worked this out.

Will Shakespeare thought December-May alliances were best.

"Men are April when they woo, December when they wed"

Will had been around. Good writer. But on romance, a born loser.

Bids accepted for construction of juvenile cells

It took nearly four years and a court order, but juvenile cells may soon be created in the city jail.

That was the word Thursday from the Lincoln mayor's office as the acceptance of bids to remodel two rooms of the police station into a juvenile cell complex was announced. The bidding was part of an upgrading of the facility ordered by a district court judge in early February. Officials were given 90 days to comply.

The remodeling will cost $29,007 and convert the police department arms and polygraph rooms into a four-bed cell and day room. Buis and Sons Construction Co. received the remodeling bid for $22,062. Lincoln Ornamental, Inc. got the bid for jail equipment at $6,345.

Efforts to change the situation began as early as 1973 with civic groups urging officials to remodel the facilities.

Punch boards for charity said legal

Associated Press

Lancaster County Atty. Ron Lahners said Thursday that he has been advised by the state Justice Department that the use of punch boards by nonprofit organizations for charitable or community betterment purposes is legal.

The opinion, written by Assistant Atty. Gen. Gary B. Schneider, apparently clears the way for use of those gaming devices by churches, church sponsored gatherings like Bingorama, and nonprofit organizations like the Eagles and Elks clubs, Lahners said.

Lahners said the ruling would also permit businesses to use punch boards for bonafide business promotion, but not for profit.

Lahners said that before he could give his blessing to the boards by operations such as Bingorama — where they have reportedly made appearances in the past — "we'd have to look at what the money is being used for." He said he doesn't believe organizations which use them would have to be incorporated, observing, "I think the Sertomans, for example, could use them for some community betterment purpose."

A punch board is usually a piece of cardboard containing numerous holes filled with tightly wrapped bits of paper that participants can "punch" out for a certain amount of money per chance. Some of the pieces of paper list prizes — sometimes cash.

Illegal lottery case will not be reheard

Associated Press

The state Supreme Court says it will not rehear arguments on the case in which it ruled that a series of lotteries, run by the City Betterment Corp., of Omaha were illegal.

The State Justice Department had filed a motion asking the high court to reconsider a portion of that Feb. 9 decision. The Department felt the court had erred in concluding the legislature had specifically authorized a lottery wherein some expenses could be paid from proceeds.

The department contended, and wanted to reargue before the court, that the intent of the Legislature was to require that proceeds could be used only to purchase prizes and that everything else had to go to charitable purposes.

The high court's decision to reject the motion for reargument was without comment, as is usually the case.

Court records checked Wednesday simply showed a notation that the request had been denied.

In its February decision, the unanimous court said the law allows "reasonable and necessary expenses," to be deducted from proceeds, such as the cost of printing tickets.

Voter deadline is Friday

The voter registration deadline for Lincoln's April 5 city primary election is 6 p.m. Friday.

People who have never registered in Lincoln or have changed their name or address since the last election are required to register to be eligible to vote.

Besides the office in the County-City Building, the Lancaster County Election Commissioner's office is operating a registration desk in the Gateway shopping mall 2 to 6 p.m. Friday.

Council candidate says bickering between mayor, council hurts

What he described as bickering and fighting between the Lincoln City Council and the mayor's office is becoming a stumbling block to efficient government, City Council candidate Joe Hampton said Thursday.

"No one person can remedy the situation right away. But I really feel that I could help ease the situation by appealing to both the mayor and the council members to exercise more good judgment and more consideration of the needs of the citizen vs. their own personal opinions," Hampton said in a news release.

Hampton said he also wanted to emphasize that differences of opinion are important and that he would not want everyone always agreeing on every issue.

Candidate delays use of signs

Lincoln City Council candidate Leo Scherer has decided not to put up yard signs until eight days before the May 3 general election.

Scherer said he made the decision to minimize the "visual pollution" caused by signs though they are a proven campaign tactic.

Mondale invited to Demo event

Associated Press

State Democratic Chairman Dick White says Vice President Walter Mondale has been invited to speak at the annual Jefferson-Jackson Day fundraising dinner in Lincoln April 30.

Nearly 2,000 Nebraska Democrats are expected to attend.

Ticket prices will range from $55 to $500. A $500 ticket will entitle the buyer to four dinners and a plaque as a member of the Governor's Club. Student tickets will cost $15.

White said a reception and dance also are scheduled.

He said the dinner theme will be "Happy Days Are Here Again" in celebration of Democratic victories in the state last November.

Kite flying contest set

The Lincoln Parks and Recreation department has scheduled a kite flying contest Sunday at Holmes Park.

The contest, which will feature both adult and youth divisions, will begin at 1:30 p.m. Judging categories include altitude, strongest puller and best decorated. Trophies will be awarded.

Enrollments increase beats nation's

United Press International

Last fall enrollments in Nebraska colleges and universities jumped by 5.5%, while the college growth rate nationwide climbed by only 1%, said William S. Fuller, executive director of the Nebraska Coordinating Commission for Postsecondary Education.

Fuller said an analysis prepared by the commission shows enrollments in Nebraska schools for the past 20 years often have surpassed the national average.

The analysis shows enrollments in two-year community colleges have soared by 35%.

Yet, Fuller said, the study also reveals enrollments at the University of Nebraska sank 9% last fall. The number of NU part-time students dropped almost 6% to 34.1% of the total NU enrollment.

NU claims about half of all post-secondary students in the state.

Fuller's report, which is headed for the National Center for Education Statistics in Washington, D.C., also shows

— Nebraskan public college enrollments in the past two decades increased 343%. Private college enrollments in Nebraska rose 90%.

— Enrollments 20 years ago were 66.9% for public and 33.1% for independent colleges. Today, enrollments in public colleges are 82.4% and in private colleges, 17.6%.

— Statewide, 68.9% of the Nebraska students are full time in post-secondary schools, with 31.1% enrolled part-time.

Lincoln doctor elected to academy post

Dr. Irving Weston of Lincoln was elected president of the Nebraska Chapter of the American Academy of Family Physicians.

Other officers elected at the academy's annual meeting include Dr. Donald Larson of Aurora, president-elect; and Dr. William DeRoin of Omaha, vice president.

Dr. Ron Scott of Kearney and Dr. Kenneth Peters of Plainview were elected to the board of directors. Dr. Clyde Medlar of Columbus was re-elected a delegate to the academy's National House of Delegates.

Firm again sells land from railway

York (AP) — The Central Land Co Ltd of Lincoln, acting on the advice of its attorney is again attempting to sell land along the former Great Plains Railway which ran through Seward, York, Fillmore, Thayer and Nuckolls counties.

Lloyd Hinkley, general manager of Town & Country Realty in Lincoln, said the firm again is making contacts with adjacent property owners and conducting title research on the property.

Last month Central Land Co had ceased the sales activity after an inquiry by State Atty. Gen. Paul Douglas.

That inquiry was prompted by a letter from Albert Simacek of rural Fairmont, which also was signed by 15 other residents of Exeter, Beaver Crossing, Geneva, Cordova and Friend.

Simacek said in his letter that he didn't believe Central Land Co held title to many of the parcels being sold and that farmers weren't really buying any land.

At last month's meeting with the attorney general, Central Land Co representatives indicated that sales activities were halted.

Douglas wrote to Simacek to say the firm indicated it was reevaluating title to land which was being offered for sale in Fillmore, York and Seward counties. The representatives also indicated then that they had relied upon previous title opinions issued by independent counsel which led them to believe they held title.

Another land owner, Wes Eberspacher of rural Exeter, was told by a York attorney that he already owns the railway right-of-way property adjacent to his land because of a reversion clause in the property deed.

Hinkley says that it is a legal question concerning the deeds and reversion clauses and in most cases he said, the reversion clause is not a factor.

Hinkley said Central Land Co is proceeding with sales contacts on land along a 40-mile stretch of the original 85-mile railway. Most of that right-of-way is in Fillmore County.

Hinkley said less than 20 acres are in York and Seward counties.

Hinkley said about 60% of the land Central Land Co owns has been sold.

He said prices for the land range from $250 to $750 an acre.

L. B. Foster Co. originally bought the salvage rights along with quit claim deed to the right-of-way from Great Plains Railway. It then transferred its title to the Fillmore County portion of the right-of-way to Central Land Co.

Return of son's body not grasped

Omaha (UPI) — For the past 12 years Mrs. Frank F. Roark has waited for word on the status of her son whose plane was shot down during a mission in North Vietnam.

She said Thursday she misunderstood a Pentagon spokesman who called her Wednesday to advise that her son's remains had been identified as one of the 12 pilots returned to the United States.

"I was very confused. I misunderstood him. I thought he said our son's body had not been identified," said Mrs. Roark of Omaha. "I found out later our son was identified. This has really been a very emotional thing. I feel very bad about the misunderstanding. It's a terrible thing, it really is," she said. "It's all my fault."

Mrs. Roark said she and her husband will be "very pleased to have our son home again."

The 12 bodies were returned to the United States with a five-member commission that went to Hanoi to account for missing Americans.

Navy Lt. William Roark was 26 years old when his plane was shot down on April 7, 1965, over North Vietnam.

Roark's widow has since remarried and lives in a Montreal suburb with Roark's three children. The youngest was born a week after his father was killed.

She doesn't recite long or sad poems

By Deb Gray
Star Staff Writer

Mrs. Colleen Clemmons was eating her noon meal at a church social table decorated with shamrocks — a reminder to diners that the day of St. Patrick, who used the shamrock to represent the Trinity, had arrived.

Mrs. Clemmons eats in the basement of St. Paul United Methodist Church every noon — one diner in the church's senior diners program.

The meals are more than macaroni and cheese excursions. They're social occasions.

Mrs. Clemmons lives alone, has since her husband Jerry died. Because of the meals, she has something to get her out of the apartment. She stays at the church throughout the afternoon, usually until 4 p.m.

The church basement also is Mrs. Clemmons' stage. She performs here, whenever called upon, reciting poetry for those who socialize here.

Mrs. Clemmons recites poems with a vivacity that compresses three acts worth of emotion into several stanzas. She always recites from memory.

She knows many poems — she doesn't know how many, but rest assured, she knows a lot.

When Mrs. Clemmons counts her blessings, she includes a computer bank ability to memorize poetry. Most of her readings are short. She can recite and retain longer poems, but she believes length bores her audience.

Keeping track of material things is trickier. "People are amazed how I remember these long poems. I can remember them, but I can't remember where I put my scissors."

Mrs. Clemmons has entertained patients in Lincoln's hospitals and nursing homes. The church is now her theater.

No particular author is a favorite. "I like them all." Most of her poems are happy — she said she doesn't know many sad ones.

Mrs. Clemmons is a tiny woman, as if her body were suspended in adolescence. The voice, supercharged with animation, is threaded with wisdom — reedy in tone, a delivery as if she has stored Chautauqua arena's in her larynx.

But Mrs. Clemmons had no dramatic training. When she opens her mouth, she says, the emotion rushes in. She admits, at heart, she is an entertainer.

Her husband Jerry was also a performer, he played the drums with the Omaha Symphony. Performing never created butterflies. She wasn't afraid when, at 5 years old, she recited her first poem before a church gathering. She's not afraid now.

Mrs. Clemmons still remembers that first poem. It's the sort of poem found in country school primers.

Come here, Nicterdamus
I'm ashamed to have to 'fess
You don't know any letters
Except your letter "S"

Now listen and I'll tell you
This round hole's name is "O"
And when you put a tail in it
It makes a "Q" you know

Now Dolly if you learn 'em
You'll learn a great big heap
Almost as much as I do
Oh, I believe you've gone to sleep

Mrs. Clemmons won't say how old she is. She gives hints — things like, "I'm old enough to vote."

Numerical age deludes people. "I think your mind controls your body and that you're as young as you think you are. Right now I think I'm 30," she stops and cracks a smile.

Mrs. Clemmons was born in Lincoln. She said she's traveled a lot during her life, but "never across the water."

She has lived in California and Omaha, but returned to Lincoln several years ago.

"When you are born in a town and you grow up there you like it," I think.

Dear Abby

By Abigail
Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a mature 17-year-old girl. Last week I had plans to go to a movie with another girl, my best friend. She called at the last minute to say that a guy she knew had come into town unexpectedly and asked her to go out with him, so our date was off. (She said she knew I'd understand.)

I felt very hurt and let down. My mother said I was wrong to feel that way because it was only natural for a girl to prefer to go out with a guy than with another girl. If a guy suddenly came into the picture, do you agree?

Abby, I don't think I would have broken my date with her had a guy called me at the last minute. I would like your opinion.

SECOND FIDDLE

DEAR SECOND: I don't think it makes any difference whether the friend who suddenly breezed into town was a guy or another girl. Breaking a date at the last minute as your "best friend" did was unfriendly.

DEAR ABBY: Yesterday a salesman came to my door and showed me his product, and before I knew it, I had signed a contract to buy it. I have two years to pay, but now I'm afraid to tell my husband about the monthly installments.

I don't know what got into me, Abby. I really don't need that product, and we certainly can't afford it at this time. (I don't work and have no money of my own.)

Is there any way I can get out of it now?

FEELING SICK

DEAR SICK: Call (or write) to the company and explain that you signed the contract before you had time to think it over carefully. Tell them that you neither need nor want the product, and you cannot afford it.

Some companies will release hasty signers from their contracts. Others will not. (A note to other wives who are financially dependent on their husbands: Discuss all purchases with your husbands first, and don't sign anything in haste.)

DEAR ABBY: I would like your opinion of the business executive (or professional person) who has pictures of the spouse and family prominently displayed on his desk. No one else is interested and if he (or she) has forgotten what his family looks like, he should take a better look at them when he gets home.

I never know what to say when I am introduced to a gallery of pictures. I keep fighting the urge to say, "Who cares?"

NAMELESS IN CHICAGO

DEAR NAMELESS: It doesn't take very long to say, "How lovely!" And there's an outside chance that some people DO care.

The reasons for the gallery display are varied. Some are there because the executive himself (or herself) likes to look at them. Others are there because the spouse has put them there. Some want to crow a little. And some are there for "protection." (I am told that some people need a subtle reminder that the doctor, dentist or lawyer is a family person.)

Everyone has a problem with sours. For a personal reply, write to ABBY, Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Repotting step by step: First, get plant out of pot (left), then shake dirt off roots (right) . . .

Repotting a lot cheaper if you mix your own soil

(c) Chicago Daily News

As spring approaches, the brighter and longer days make weary-looking plants perk up, encouraging the indoor gardener to putter with his plants. Repotting is one springtime chore and the search for soil is always a challenge. Commercially prepared mixes can break a budget if your plant collection is large and the outdoor garden variety is improper for house plants.

Preparing your own soil is far less expensive. If you are willing to put in a few hours, you should end up with enough to handle your gardening chores for the year. Here's what you'll need:

— A garbage can: One will do if you want a large batch of basic potting soil, but if your collection includes succulents, get a second one to hold a quick-draining mix. Some people prefer to purchase several smaller containers, keeping the ingredients separate and mixing as the need arises.

— Peat moss or humus: Both are found at your local garden center. They hold water in the soil and contain nutrients necessary for plant growth.

— Sharp builders sand: Lumber yards carry this year round. It allows water to drain quickly and holds air in the soil.

— Charcoal: This will filter gases out of water and increase drainage.

— A piece of 1/4-inch screen.

— Garden loam: Dig it out of your yard and sift it through the screen to remove all rocks, twigs and other large particles.

— An outdoor grill or an indoor oven and a can of room deodorant: Cooking soil in your oven does not make your house smell like freshly baked bread, quite the contrary. An outdoor grill is the perfect substitute and keeps the odor outside where it belongs.

Spread the garden soil in a roasting pan or pot, add water to dampen it, cover and bake it at about 200 degrees for an hour. If you put a baking potato in with the soil, the soil should be sterile when the potato is cooked. Sterilizing the soil is absolutely necessary. It is much easier to kill pests and stop diseases before they infect a plant.

Once the soil is cool, mix it with the other ingredients in the proportions listed below. The basic potting mix is good for most tropical plants except orchids and bromeliads. Cacti and succulents from desert regions need more drainage and do better in the second mixture.

BASIC POTTING MIXTURE

One part charcoal
Two parts builders sand
Three parts garden soil
Three parts peat moss or humus

CACTI AND SUCCULENT MIXTURE

One part garden soil
One part peat moss or humus
Two parts builders sand

If you want to add additional nutrients to these mixtures, you can dampen, not soak, them with diluted fertilizer. Organic ones are the safest, so try fish emulsion, bone meal or seaweed powder.

Opening lead — king of diamonds.

Once a player acquires the necessary experience and know-how to guide him through the fundamental elements of play, his progress thereafter depends chiefly on how many of the more advanced plays he can master and apply.

Most of these so-called advanced plays are not difficult at all. For example, take the elimination play, illustrated by this deal.

Without the aid of the elimination play, South might find himself going down one. He would lose a trump trick, and, if he failed to take the two-way heart finesse in the right direction, he would also lose a heart trick.

But South can guarantee the slam by planning the play in a more businesslike manner.

There is no need to mastermind the problem of locating the missing queen of hearts.

Declarer can avoid the guess by sizing up his chances at the start of the play and making the proper series of moves to eliminate the possibility of losing a heart trick.

Declarer wins the opening diamond lead with the ace and ruffs a diamond. He then leads a club to the ace and ruffs a club. The effect of these plays is that he has no more diamonds or clubs in either hand. South then exits with a trump.

At this point, South has the slam firmly in tow. He is not bothered by the question of which opponent wins the trump lead with the ace, nor does he care at all which suit is returned.

In the actual case, East wins the trump lead with the ace and must return either a heart, eliminating the guess for the queen, or a minor suit, permitting declarer to ruff in his hand as he discards a heart from dummy. Either way, the slam is ice-cold.

At a mere $700,000, this mansion is a steal!

Pittsburgh (UPI) — For sale: Lovely 24-room mansion. Prestigious address. Well-screened for privacy. Charming separate apartment area for maid or butler. Spacious four-car garage. Many delightful extras. Must see! Only $700,000.

That's right, folks. For only 700 grand you can own a home just like the Mellons. This house, in fact, is being sold by the heir to the Mellon banking fortune.

Seward Prosser Mellon now reportedly lives at his country place in the Rolling Rock area near Ligonier and no longer needs his Squirrel Hill estate.

The estate, "perfectly located for in-city living," has bedrooms that would pass for houses in most other parts of town.

"Master bedroom complete with his and her baths, separate dressing areas and pantry kitchen," a real estate ad reads.

The mansion was home for Mellon and his first wife, the former Karen L. Boyd.

Statewide tax system bill lifted to floor

Associated Press
The Legislature voted 27-18 Thursday to bring to the floor a bill that would set up a statewide computerized system, overseen by the tax commissioner, to end "vast disparities" on property tax valuations among different counties.

Ralston Sen. Gerald Koch led the effort which succeeded in lifting his LB170 from the Revenue Committee which had failed to take action on it.

Koch noted the wide disparity in property valuations around the state, in contradiction of state law, and asked his colleagues, "Are we going to sit by and let certain citizens of this state be disproportionately taxed to the advantage of others?"

Koch said counties that fail to update assessments are rewarded through more state relief while those which follow the law are effectively penalized.

Koch said the bill was not aimed at diminishing the role of assessors, but said it would "relieve some of the pressure on them."

The bill would have a system to keep track of valuations set by the end of 1978, the valuations would be updated annually. The tax commissioner would inform the Board of Equalization and Assessment of any valuation that was more than 3% off in the county-state valuation.

If a county could not show why its valuations should not be changed, the Board of Equalization could change it.

A number of lawmakers rose to support Koch, including Sens. Frank

Lewis of Bellevue and Doug Bereuter of Utica. Lewis warned that lawsuits would eventually be filed in the unequal system of taxation were not changed, and Bereuter said the current system was a "shambles."

Adams Sen. George Burrows said the Board of Equalization has authority to do what Koch wants to mandate.

Columbus Sen. Donald Dworak said the measure would take the assessing process from county assessors and vest it in the tax commissioner.

Suggestions reward bill advanced

United Press International
The Unicameral's Government, Military and Veterans Affairs Committee Thursday advanced three bills to the floor for debate, including a measure designed to reward state employees for thinking up money-saving ideas.

Sponsored by Omaha Sen. Neil Simon, LB286 sets up an employee suggestion system that would encourage submission of ideas to improve the efficiency of government.

The committee also advanced Ralston Sen. Gerald Koch's LB448, which requires the state auditor to be a certified public accountant. The measure further defines which state boards the state auditor must be seated on.

Sen. Dennis Rasmussen, committee chairman, opposed the advancement of LB448 because he dislikes writing into law the requirements that must be met by candidates running for an office.

Bad check code revised upward

United Press International
The Legislature Thursday voted to revise the state's criminal code by increasing the amounts of insufficient fund checks covered by current penalties.

Unicameral Speaker Roland Luedtke, who explained the section of the code dealing with fraud and deception, said the proposed penalties for intentionally writing insufficient checks were drafted to conform with penalties for theft.

The lawmakers voted 27-0 to accept the following amendments:

- Increase the check total from $300 to $1,000 for a Class III felony, which carries a penalty of a minimum of one year and a

- maximum of 20 years in prison, or a $25,000 fine, or both.
- Make it a Class IV felony to write a bad check of more than $300 (instead of $75) but less than $1,000 (instead of $300). A Class IV felony carries a penalty of a minimum of one year and a maximum of five years in prison, or a $10,000 fine, or both.
- Impose a penalty of not more than one year in prison, or a $3,000 fine, or both, for writing a check of $75 or more, but less than $300.
- Impose a penalty of a maximum of six months in prison, or a $1,000 fine, or both, for writing a check of less than $75.

Deaf school amendment turned back

Associated Press
The Legislature Thursday passed two bills, one on the Nebraska School for the Deaf, which prompted an unsuccessful last-minute attempt at revision.

Lawmakers voted 34-7 to pass LB22, which repeals a section of law requiring the school to teach oral, aural and lip reading methods and barring the teaching of sign language methods.

Bellevue Sen. Frank Lewis tried to return the bill to the second-round floor action stage to amend it so that both lip reading and other teaching methods leading to total communication would be used. The effort failed 18-24.

Lewis indicated he had checked with professional educators who said there was a problem at the deaf school in Omaha and so he wanted to include some legislative direction.

In effect, the school has been ignoring the law barring teaching by the sign language method, as Omaha Sen. Dave Newell mentioned during the debate.

The other bill passed was LB176, which allows certain beer licensed establishments to block outside viewing of a bar's interior by putting up curtains or other devices over windows.

Fremont Sen. Barry Reutzel's bill, which passed 31-15, has been referred to jokingly as the measure for a Fremont "topless" nightclub.

Sen JoAnn Maxey of Lincoln Thursday won a veto confrontation with the man who appointed her to the Legislature two months ago.

Her displaced homemaker assistance act and a $93,860 appropriation to fund it were enacted over Gov J James Exon's vetoes on a 31-14 vote.

Thirty votes were required to override the objections of the governor.

Earlier this week, senators overrode Exon's vetoes of aid to dependent children legislation which exceeded his spending recommendations by $1.9 million.

Mrs Maxey's bill provides for the establishment of two pilot multi-purpose centers for displaced homemakers in Nebraska to provide job counseling and placement training and education services.

The centers one of which will be located in Douglas County will be operated by the Department of Education.

The proposal is designed to assist divorced or widowed homemakers in their middle years who find that they have deficient training or work experience outside of the home to secure employment.

Those women confront a reduced income, employment discrimination and limited opportunities to collect any form of public assistance, Mrs Maxey noted. Current government programs do not meet their needs, she said.

LB389 would help "women who want to re-educate themselves, work and help pay taxes," she said.

Sen Ernest Chambers of Omaha said the proposal is "not too much to ask as a down payment on the restoration of dignity and self-respect" for women who have often been assigned by law and social custom to act as "virtual serfs or indentured servants" for their husbands.

Once widowed or divorced, women of middle years face employment problems based on age, sex and lack of work experience outside of the home, Chambers noted.

Sen John DeCamp of Neligh said the Legislature itself created a problem for many such women when it enacted a no-fault divorce law. That "turned the world around" for some women who say long marriages dissolve, he said.

Sen Sam Cullan of Hemingford said the bill proposes a program which probably would not work, leaving nearly $94,000 in state funds "foolishly spent."

Under provisions of the bill, the program would expire in three years if it is not re-enacted by the Unicameral.

LB389 originally cleared the Legislature with 35 votes.

Sens Orval Keyes of Springfield, Barry Reutzel of Remont and Myron Rumery of North Platte switched from supporting the bill on final reading to supporting the veto.

Sens Bernice Labedz of Omaha and Walter George of Blair originally voted for the bill but were recorded as not voting on the motion to override.

Two other supporters, Steve Fowler of Lincoln and Harold Moylan of Omaha, were not present for the vote to override.

But three senators who were either excused or not voting when the bill was first passed — John DeCamp of Neligh, John Murphy of South Sioux City and Larry Stoney of Omaha — all voted to override the veto.

Here is the vote on Mrs Maxey's motion:

For: Barnett, Bereuter, Boughn, Brennan, Burrows, Carsten, Chambers, Cope, DeCamp, Fitzgerald, Goodrich, Heffner, Kelly, Koch, F. Lewis, Luedtke, Marek, Marsh, Marvel, Maxey, Merz, Murphy, Newell, Nichol, Savage, Schmit, Simon, Stoney, Swigart, Venditte, Warner.

Against: Clark, Cullan, Duis, Dwoarak, Hasebroock, Kahle, Keyes, Kremer, Lamb, R. Lewis, Mills, Rasmussen, Reutzel, Rumery.

Not Voting: George, Labedz.

Excused: Fowler, Moylan.

Unicam advances proposal on rural health manpower

A seven-member commission on rural health manpower would be established under a bill which received 30-0 first round approval in the Legislature Thursday.

LB494 introduced at the request of Gov J James Exon provides for six commission members appointed by the governor with the consent of the Legislature. The state health director would serve ex-officio.

The body would include a medical student specializing in family practice, three rural physicians and two representatives of rural areas.

The measure defines a rural area as a region in any county with less than 15,000 population.

Under an amendment offered by Sen Jerome Warner, Waverly, the operations of former State Sen Thomas Kennedy, Newman Grove, would be authorized in the statutes.

Among other bills receiving preliminary approval Thursday was LB499, which would authorize public natural gas suppliers, particularly Omaha's Metropolitan Utilities District to skip natural gas to needy areas during periods of emergencies.

Mud shared gas with several cities outside Nebraska which ran short last winter.

Also receiving initial approval were LB112, providing that county and municipal judges establish a uniform bail schedule, LB454, authorizing the serving of notice in place of summons in juvenile court cases, and LB391, requiring governing bodies to use the final adjusted valuations as certified by State Board of Equalization and Assessment when setting or certifying a tax levy.

In other action, the lawmakers:

— Gave preliminary approval to LB74, which would let Lincoln charge for garbage removal. The city also could remove garbage or refuse from property, roads or streets within its corporate limits or within its three-mile jurisdictional limit.

Relatives to retrace 50-mile walk

Norfolk (AP) — A century ago this month, Michael McCarthy walked 50 miles from Grand Island, Neb., to Greeley, to file a homestead claim. The next day he walked back to get a team of mules and supplies.

This Sunday, McCarthy's great-grandson, Tom McCarthy of Norfolk, will lead a band of relatives in retracing Michael's steps.

Tom McCarthy, district engineer for the State Department of Roads, will attempt the walk with his wife, their four sons, Matt, 13, Tim, 12, Ted, 10, and Philip, 8, his two sisters, Mrs. B. J. Glaser of Ansley and Mrs. Jim Ryan of Greeley, and their families.

McCarthy said the walk was the idea of Mrs. Glaser, a history buff.

They will start the hike at 6 a.m. McCarthy said the State Patrol has been informed of their plans.

Michael McCarthy came to Nebraska with his four sons to look for land, leaving his wife and two daughters in the East. Mrs. McCarthy and one of the daughters joined him later, the other daughter having died.

Ag proposals anger farmers

By Dominick Costello
Farm Editor

The honeymoon between farmers and the Carter Administration apparently is over now that the new farm program proposals have been revealed in Senate Agricultural Committee hearings.

"What I want to say is unprintable," said Nebraska Wheat Growers Assn. president John Sullivan of Wallace.

"Wheat farmers have been stabbed in the back, sold down the river. During the campaign, the Carter people led us to believe they would support wheat and corn at the cost of production.

"How can they tell the dairy farmer he is worth 83% of parity while the wheat farmer is worth only 46% of parity? Wheat farmers are in desperate trouble," Sullivan said.

Vic Haas of Hemingford, a former wheat grower president and a member of the Nebraska Wheat Commission, was particularly bitter.

"Keeping the price of wheat at $2.25 a bushel is a slap in the face to farmers and those who supply farmers," Haas said. "It costs $3.50 to $3.80 to grow a bushel of wheat," he added.

Haas noted that the majority of the House of Representatives had supported a wheat loan price of $2.50 in 1975. "Since then, we have had two years of tremendous inflation in costs to the grower," he said.

"Taxpayers need to know that farmers repay the loans in full with interest. It doesn't cost the taxpayers because if the farmer defaults, they get the wheat. The government bookkeeping system doesn't show this repayment," Haas said, "and it makes the farmers look like a bunch of leeches."

"Carter has shown he respects the draft dodgers of his country more than he does the hard working farmers, their wives and their families," he said.

Louis Wiebe, president of the Farmers Union of Nebraska, described the program as "grossly inadequate, particularly in the area of wheat."

Wiebe said he was going to set up commodity councils within the Farmers Union to develop specific policies on each commodity and to inform members on what is happening to their particular crop.

"We are happy with the Carter proposals for milk, but wheat farmers were left in terrible shape," he said.

Morris Van Kirk, a spokesman for the Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation, noted his organization didn't want loan and target rates set so high as to encourage excessive production.

"These proposals certainly won't encourage excessive production. Consumers and labor want cheap food. He (Secretary of Agriculture Robert Bergland) has made concessions to them. It won't make him popular with farmers who wanted full cost of production," Van Kirk said.

Van Kirk added that "Bergland has said he wants to allow the free market to set prices. This apparently is in line with that policy."

"I think the proposals to establish a reserve of wheat could be more acceptable if it can be worked out to keep it on farms," he said.

Ed Tvrdy of Surprise, president of the state National Farmers Organization (NFO) said he hopes "this makes all farmers, Republican or Democrat, realize that the great white father in Washington isn't going to do much for them. They are going to have to raise prices themselves. Someday farmers will really organize, but it might not happen until there is only one farmer left," he said.

Tvrdy warned that consumers have the most to lose because of low farm prices. "Look at $4-a-pound coffee. That is just a sample of what kind of prices we will see for food if we allow farmers to go broke," he said.

Farmers have had to refinance for the 1977 crop by borrowing on their grain.

"It is as bad an economic condition as I have seen," he said.

Thone's bill view mixed

Nebraska's 1st District Congressman Charles Thone, in a telephone interview from Washington Thursday, said the first day of hearings on the Carter administration farm bill "was kind of rough on Mr. Bergland (Secretary of Agriculture Robert Bergland)."

"Bergland did a better job of defending his administration bill Thursday than he did in the Senate Wednesday. He said it was a consensus bill, not a USDA bill. I think he got into trouble with his superiors when he said he wouldn't have proposed this had he been a congressman at the Senate hearing Wednesday," Thone said.

Thone said the Carter bill wasn't all bad.

"It is an insult to the hard working wheat farmer in terms of what he will get, but the on-the-farm storage feature looks to be a good one. There may be some problems in the small print, but on the surface the storage part of the bill looks good," he said.

Thone said Bergland had not included a statement calling for food stamp reform in the House hearing that he had made in the Senate hearing on Wednesday.

"I think he is catching a lot of flack from the food stamp coalition, but we have to do something to help the needy instead of the greedy. I hope he doesn't back down on that too," Thone said.

Thone noted farmer comments that Bergland had run into problems with the Bureau of the Budget, but said that was only part of the problem Bergland faces.

"He really ran into the President of the United States. The administration caved in to the East Coast cheap food advocates. Carter has reneged on his campaign promises to farmers. He tried to be everything to everybody and it isn't working," he said.

Thone noted that Bergland had personally led the fight to set wheat loan prices at $2.50 a bushel in an effort to override a Ford veto in 1975. "Now he is proposing a $2.25 loan rate when costs are much higher. That is a bald fact they just can't duck. Their arithmetic is terrible on farmers' cost of production," he said.

Thone predicted the farm bill will be altered from the Carter proposals before it leaves the Congress.

Lincolnite 'very serious'

Spec. 4 C. Bradley Loos of Lincoln, who had been listed in critical condition at Bethesda Naval Hospital, Bethesda, Md., is now listed in "very serious" condition.

Loos, 22, stationed on the U.S.S. Manley, was injured March 18 during gunnery exercises near Guantanamo, Cuba. A gun mount exploded injuring four persons, according to a Navy spokesman.

Loos suffered burns on his neck, face and chest, the spokesman said.

Loos is the son of Mrs. Thomas Jones, 4625 Normal Blvd., and Larry Loos of Lincoln.

Woman dies in fire
Falls City (AP) — An elderly woman died Thursday in a fire of undetermined origin that destroyed her two-story home in Falls City. Richardson County Attorney Tom Gist pronounced Mrs. Bryan Miller, 88, dead at the scene. Firemen were unable to enter the burning home because of smoke, flames and intense heat.

Murray may build school
Murray (AP) — Residents of the Murray School District voted 222 to 172 in favor of advancing to a Class Two K-12 high school. Principal Dale Montgomery said the district will vote on a $2.2 million bond issue in May to provide funds for the high school. If the issue is rejected, Murray is expected to continue its exploration of possible consolidation with Nehawka or Plattsmouth.

Crash kills 7 cows
Kearney (AP) — Seven cows were killed Wednesday night when a stock trailer was struck by a train at a crossing in Kearney. Police said the trailer hung up on the tracks when a front axle broke. Another of the 11 cows, all pregnant, in the trailer was injured. Police said the driver of a pickup pulling the trailer, driven by Rodney Weatherly of Cozad, and a passenger were out of the vehicle and escaped injury.

Third write-in files
Omaha (AP) — A third Omahan has entered the mayor's race as a write-in candidate. Howard W. Abrams, 60, filed an affidavit Thursday stating that he would wage a write-in campaign. Other write-in candidates are Al Vays, a South Omaha grocer and former city councilman, and Joe Scarpello, a professional wrestler. Michael Albert and Betty Abbott, both Republicans, are other candidates for the post.

Harlan funds sought
Omaha (UPI) — Sen. Carl T. Curtis, R-Neb., is seeking at least $5 million in emergency funds for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to use in correcting low water levels at the Harlan County reservoir in south central Nebraska. Curtis said a crops' study to be completed in May would include ways to solve recreation problems at the reservoir caused by the low water levels.

Adm. Guest dies
Omaha (AP) — Services will be held at Arlington, Va., Friday for Rear Adm. Franks B. Guest Jr., commander of the Naval Surface

Reserve at Fort Omaha in 1973-74, before that command was moved to New Orleans. Guest, 57, died in Philadelphia Tuesday.

Whites lead transfers
Omaha (AP) — More whites than blacks are seeking racial-balance transfers in the Omaha School District next fall, records show. The increase in white students seeking transfers — most of them to attend Technical High School — brought an increase of nearly 200 in the number of transfers requested for next school year, figures show. In all, 1,607 students have asked to attend schools other than the ones closest to their homes next fall. Of those, 877 are whites and 730 blacks, the records show.

Airport expansion eyed
Omaha (AP) — A major addition to the Eppley Airfield passenger terminal may soon be undertaken, according to Ronald B. Grear, Airport Authority executive director. He said he expects an improvement and expansion plan to come out of a study of terminal needs. The study will focus on ways to provide sheltered aircraft boarding for at least three of the five airlines which do not now have jetway-equipped gates and want enlarged baggage claiming facilities.

Christmas lights theft reported

'Tis not really the season, but, a Lincoln woman told police that somebody stole a string of 52 Christmas lights from her backyard at 3323 Mohawk late Wednesday or early Thursday.

Mrs. Mary Macrow said the lights were strung between her house and clothesline poles.

Lincolnite arrested on assault charges

Police arrested a 28-year-old Lincoln man late Wednesday on charges of assault and first degree sexual assault involving two women in an incident in northeast Lincoln.

Police reports said the man assaulted one woman and raped the other. Formal charges are pending.

Woman's prostitution story unsupported

The Lincoln Star

Friday, 3/25/77 Page 15

Omaha (AP) — Allegations by a young woman who said that two judges and several police officers had been prostitution customers of hers had "no basis in fact," Omaha Mayor Robert Cunningham and Police Chief Richard Andersen said Thursday.

Andersen said two days of investigation resulted in no proof of the charges the woman made Tuesday during a meeting of the mayor, city council members, City Prosecutor Gary Buccino, judges and police officials.

"She did say she had pictures and proof to back it up," Cunningham said, but investigators found "no such pictures."

Andersen said the woman, who was not identified, had emotional problems and has been admitted and treated for mental problems 12 times. In the last 18 months, the woman had filed 18 complaints of sexual assault and assault and battery.

The charges were by a "very disturbed, highly emotional young lady," and the proof and photos she offered "simply do not exist," Andersen said.

Under police questioning, the woman was unable to give the name of one of the judges who she identified to reporters as her customers, Andersen said. He suggested that the woman picked up the name in conversation with reporters.

Cunningham, commenting on figures released by the Municipal Court administrator's office Wednesday, said the problem with prosecution of prostitution was in interpretations of the city's ordinances on loitering and prowling.

The court administrator's office Wednesday said the Municipal Court had a 98% conviction rate of the cases on prostitution and soliciting submitted to it for judgment. The administrator, Paul B. Platt, concluded that the police and prosecutors were doing a good job in securing evidence and prosecuting those cases.

However, Cunningham figures on prosecution on loitering charges were not included and officials "had to rely on loitering law which judges were not enforcing."

Cunningham said the subject was not just prostitution: "We're talking about the moral climate of the whole community."

Cunningham said the closed-door meeting Tuesday had been to work out cooperation for increased enforcement and prosecution in all the prostitution-related cases.

Kingery is low bidder on library

The Lincoln City Library Board Thursday approved Kingery Construction Co.'s $529,300 bid to build an addition to the Bennett Martin Public Library, 14th and N Sts.

The bid includes $506,000 for the construction of the two-story, 10,000 square-foot addition, $15,500 for a dumb waiter and $7,800 for lighting.

Kingery's was the lowest of the three bids submitted for the project.

Man faces 4 charges of robbery

Omaha (UPI) — An Omahan was ordered held in lieu of $100,000 bond Thursday on four felony charges filed in connection with two armed robberies, including the $48,000 holdup of the American National Bank Tuesday.

Kenneth Gibson, 30, was named in two complaints, each alleging robbery and use of a firearm in commission of a felony.

Gibson had been out on $150,000 bond in connection with the Feb. 2 robbery of the Cornhusker Bank and the Jan. 15 robbery of a grocery store.

In addition to the bank robbery charges filed Thursday, the remaining two were for the Sunday holdup a drug store in which $350 was taken.

Gibson now faces four charges of robbery and four of using a firearm in commission of a felony.

Gibson was arrested early Wednesday while driving a car in north central Omaha. A companion was released after questioning.

Authorities said Thursday they believe they know the identity of the black who allegedly helped Gibson during the Tuesday bank robbery. None of the money has been recovered.

In setting Gibson's $100,000 bond Thursday, Municipal Court Judge William Ryan said Gibson could post 10% or $10,000 of it to be freed.

Ryan set Gibson's preliminary hearing date for March 31.

Supreme Court has not acted on LEAA idea

The Nebraska Supreme Court has taken no action on the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration proposal to establish judicial planning committees in each state, according to State Court Administrator James Dunleavy.

Under the LEAA proposal, a minimum of $50,000 would be given to each state to establish the committees and to develop comprehensive plans for the courts. The goal is to give special attention to projects that will reduce court congestion and backlogs, thus improving the efficiency and fairness of the judicial system.

Dunleavy said the court's lack of formal action on the matter may indicate that the jurists don't feel such a committee is needed. He added that he doesn't think Nebraska has faced the kinds of problems that led Congress to adopt the new judicial planning concept.

Major League realignment is rejected

Tampa, Fla. (UPI) — American and National League officials met for 4 1/2 hours Thursday and wound up rejecting a proposal for divisional realignment and taking no definitive action on interleague play.

The chief purpose of the spring baseball meetings, according to American League president Lee MacPhail, was to work out a suitable scheduling solution to the presently unbalanced leagues.

"Our prime purpose was to consider the three division concept of play and get right to work on the schedules," said MacPhail. "However, that proposal was rejected. If we had wanted to have implemented it for the 1978 season it would have been necessary to present a proposed schedule to the Players Association by June 15."

Among the other proposals brought up at the meeting was the concept of two 13-team leagues, with interleague play. That would be accomplished by transferring one American League team, specifically the Oakland A's, to Washington, D.C., and operating them as a National League franchise.

But although both leagues agreed to further study the 13-13 concept, the prospect of it being accomplished seemed dim. The major roadblocks were the Baltimore Orioles, who are opposed to having their territorial rights violated by placing a team in Washington, and Oakland owner Charles O. Finley, who is unsuitable to the National League as an owner for one of their franchises. Finley also has said he would not move the A's under any circumstances.

"There is considerable interest in regard to a 13-team league among the National League owners," said Walter O'Malley, board chairman of the Los Angeles Dodgers, "but only if a suitable owner could be found for Washington and also if (Baltimore Orioles board chairman) Jerry Hoffberger gives his approval. But everytime the questions is raised he hits the roof."

Thus, the American League, which expanded to 14 teams with the addition of Seattle and Toronto this season, will continue with its unwieldy schedule at least through the 1978 season and the National League, which has in the past overwhelmingly rejected expansion, will remain a 12-team circuit.

In addition, there was no action taken by owners in regarding a published report that they were dissatisfied with baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn's performance. According to the report, the owners were unhappy over the fact that Kuhn had emerged with unlimited power over baseball in view of a recent federal court decision denying a $3.5 million suit filed against him by Finley.

"I think the powers of the commissioner as they exist at the present are wide and correct," said Kuhn.

Perhaps the entire substance of the meetings could best be summed up in the first words uttered by one National League official to another upon emerging from the proceedings: "Now, where did you say that party was?" said the official.

Bud Selig, chief executive officer of the Milwaukee Brewers, and Dan Galbreath, president of the Pittsburgh Pirates, revealed that some of the younger major league owners met informally Wednesday at the suggestion of George Steinbrenner, chief general partner of the New York Yankees.

Among the topics discussed were Kuhn's powers of authority.

"There had been a report that we were meeting to discuss some kind of erosion," said Selig. "On the contrary. We tried to find ways to help and support the commissioner. There was no feeling whatsoever about diminishing his powers."

Mets to keep ace Seaver; Rumor denied

Tampa, Fla. (UPI) — Tom Seaver was pulled off the market Thursday by the New York Mets.

Actually, he was never on, although there was some vague talk about him going to the Los Angeles Dodgers for Don Sutton when he balked at signing his contract a year ago.

Seaver said the other day he wouldn't mind being traded, preferably to the world champion Cincinnati Reds or the Dodgers and that immediately gave rise to speculation that he could be dealt to the Reds for Pete Rose, who has not signed his contract for this year yet. Rose is asking the Reds for $400,000 the same as teammate Joe Morgan is getting and the club's last offer to him was only $250,000.

It is no secret that Seaver feels his relationship with the front office is not as strong as it once was. He was hurt by the way the club treated him during contract negotiations last year and he has expressed disappointment with the club for bringing his name into contract negotiations this spring with slugger Dave Kingman. Kingman is unsigned but the Mets have told him they will not pay anyone more than they pay Seaver.

"I think it's wrong," Seaver said recently about the Mets' using Seaver's name as a weapon in their contract talks with Kingman. "I just hope he doesn't have to go through what I went through last year. You hope that your bosses appreciate what you do to the fullest extent, but unfortunately it doesn't always work out that way. That makes it sad."

Seaver also criticized the Mets for not coming up with a quality player in the re-entry draft last winter. But, despite his protests, the Mets insist he will not be traded.

"We have no intention whatsoever of trading Tom Seaver," said Mets' general manager Joe McDonald Thursday before the spring meeting of league officials here. "He's going to pitch for us. I don't know where any reports of him going for Pete Rose originate but they are absolutely not true. We've never had any such discussion with the Reds."

Bob Howsam, president of the Reds, confirmed McDonald's statement.

"We're not going to trade Pete Rose," he said in absolutely positive terms. "We want him to play for us this year and we want him to play for us not only this year but for the rest of his career."

Howsam gave every indication that the Reds would do everything possible to see that Rose eventually signed his contract.

For his part Rose, who will be 36 on April 14, pointed out he was born and raised in Cincinnati and that he loves not only the city but the people in it. The city's love for Rose was supported Wednesday when several merchants volunteered to take up a collection to help pay Rose's salary.

"I hope I never leave. I've always been treated wonderfully here," Rose said of his hometown. "Why would I ever want to leave—except if I can't get what I feel I'm worth. But if they do trade me the teams I would prefer to go to are the Yankees, the Dodgers, San Diego, the Red Sox, or Philadelphia."

McGuire foiled in early effort at retirement

Atlanta (UPI) — Al McGuire wanted to quit as coach of the Marquette Warriors before the season ever began.

But McGuire didn't get his way, and now he finds himself leading the Warriors into the NCAA semifinals Saturday in an appropriate finish to a colorful career.

"I am just pleased it is coming to an end, and it's ending on a high note," said McGuire. "It's been a nice run."

"I really didn't want to coach this year. I wanted in November to be athletic director and let Coach (Hank) Raymonds be the coach, and then in April if Coach Raymonds wanted to be athletic director and coach, he could be. But I just couldn't get it worked out."

McGuire announced early his plan to retire at the end of the season and the warriors lost five games at home. "Some might have been because of the emotional changing of jobs," he said.

But 14th-ranked Marquette (23-7) rallied at the end of the season, captured the Midwest Regional and will meet unranked North Carolina-Charlotte (28-3) at 2:15 p.m. EST Saturday in the first NCAA semifinal game. Third-ranked North Carolina (27-4) plays sixth-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas (28-2) at 4:15 p.m. A consolation game will precede the championship contest Monday night.

The teams began arriving here Thursday and will work out Friday in the Omni.

Despite the high stakes, McGuire refuses to be pressured. The most important item he wished to discuss at a news conference conducted by the four coaches was the high cost of tickets.

"I really believe an amateur event should not be charging $14 a seat," said McGuire. "I don't see how students can afford it. I can see it for a pro event, but not for an amateur event."

Ironically, McGuire spent seven years as head coach at Belmont Abbey, a school just outside Charlotte, N.C. He spoke at a fund-raising banquet to raise funds to build the basketball program at North Carolina-Charlotte — the team he faces Saturday.

He also turned down an assistant coaching job at North Carolina under Frank McGuire — a post which later went to Dean Smith.

The colorful New York native, who has been hurt by technical fouls in key games in the past, is determined that will not occur this weekend.

"I got blindsided in the Kansas State game (in the Midwest Regional)," he said. "I will never let that happen again. There's no way I will get off the bench. The game will be won or lost against Charlotte by the players."

In North Carolina-Charlotte, Marquette will be facing the tournament's Cinderella team led by 6-6 senior center Cedric "Cornbread" Maxwell, who is averaging 22.1 points and 12 rebounds a game.

NC-Charlotte Coach Lee Rose said he expects the Warriors to try to control the tempo of the game and slow down a 49er attack which has averaged 80 points a game.

McGuire admits he is a defensive-oriented coach "because I was not a scorer as a player. I guess subconsciously I work more on defense."

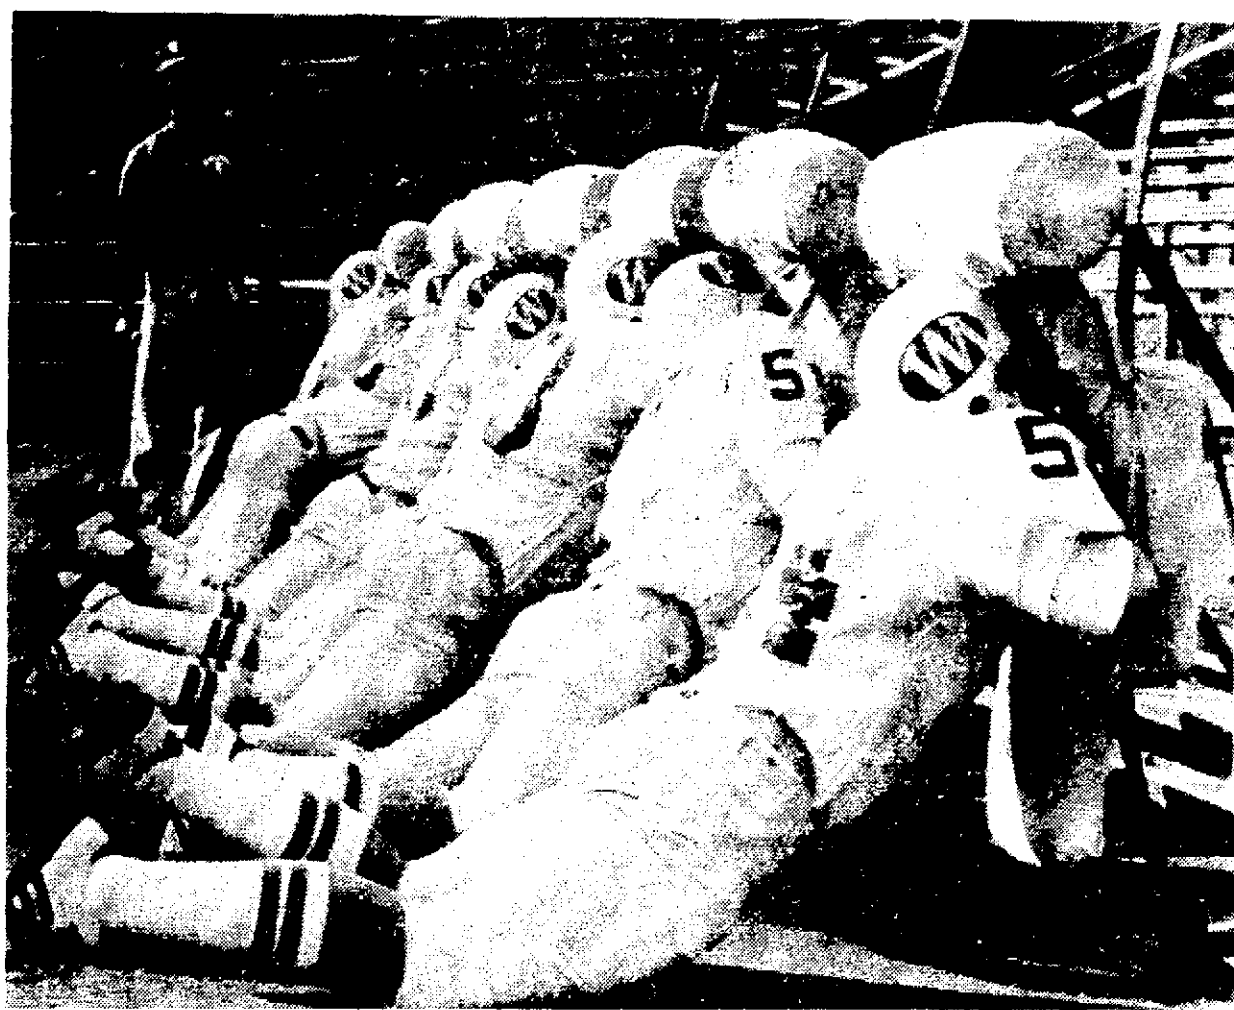

"Defense is determined by the size of your heart," said McGuire. "Offense is Godgiven."

In the other matchup, injury-riddled North Carolina will be trying to slow down the run-and-gun attack of Nevada-Las Vegas.

"We have a real problem matching up with Nevada-Las Vegas," said Smith. He noted the Rebels use basically a one-guard offense and "they're very strong up front."

While he has played against a "four corners offense," Nevada-Las Vegas Coach Jerry Tarkanian said "I don't think anybody runs it as well as Carolina runs it."

"I think they are going to play their regular game," said Tarkanian. "I don't think there is going to be any changes among the four teams. They are all going to play the way they did to get here."

Wisconsin football drills underway

Seven University of Wisconsin football players hit the pads in perfect unison Thursday as the Badgers continue spring training at Camp Randall Stadium.

Tagge signs with CFL team

Vancouver (AP) — Quarterback Jerry Tagge, a second-team All-American from the University of Nebraska in 1971, has been signed by the British Columbia Lions of the Canadian Football League.

The 26-year-old Tagge was a first-round draft choice of the Green Bay Packers of the National Football League in 1972 but was cut. He then signed with the San Antonio Stars of the now defunct World Football League.

He was the final training camp cut of the Chicago Bears of the NFL last season.

King wins, but Renee is loser

San Antonio (AP) — Top-seeded Billie Jean King defeated seventh-seeded Kate Latham 6-4, 6-2 Thursday in the quarter-finals of the McFarlin Cup women's professional tennis tournament.

Ms. King will face Marcie Louie of San Francisco in the semifinals Friday.

Miss Louie, the No. 3 seed, downed Dr. Renee Richards 5-7, 7-6, 6-2 in another quarter-final match. The setback spoiled a meeting between Ms. King and Dr. Richards.

Irwin, Marsh share lead in rich Heritage Classic

Hilton Head Island, S.C. (UPI) — Two-time Heritage champion Hale Irwin and Australian Graham Marsh, a rookie on the PGA tour, fired six-under-par 65s Thursday to take the first round lead in the $225,000 Heritage Golf Classic.

Irwin overcame an erratic driver with consistent iron play to get his share of the lead, while Marsh had to fight back from a double-bogey when his drive on the par-three fourth hole went into the water.

Ben Crenshaw was one stroke behind the leaders, touring the 6,655-yard Harbour Town Golf Links in a five-under-par 66.

Defending Masters champion Ray Floyd, expressing confidence in his game two weeks away from the Masters, and Tom Watson, the second leading money-winner this year with $109,535, were two strokes back of the leaders.

Jack Nicklaus, who helped design the course, which features narrow fairways flanked by pine trees and salt marsh, was in a crowd of players who finished the day three strokes behind the leaders. Tied with Nicklaus at 68 were Charles Coody, Jerry Pate, Danny Edwards, Lynn Lott and Leonard Thompson.

Tom Weiskopf, who finished four strokes behind the leaders, was disqualified by PGA officials who said he erred when he dropped a ball on the 11th hole. Weiskopf's ball was on a cart path and he went too far from the original point to drop his ball.

Irwin's round included four straight birdies on the front nine holes but he said the high point of the round was an approach shot on the 11th hole allowing him to make par.

Irwin's drive on the par-four, 418-yard hole ended up in a wooded area. Instead of chipping back to the fairway, Irwin elected to go for about a yard of space between two trees a short distance from him. His aim was perfect and he ended up in front of the green. "I'm here to play golf and I'm not going to pitch it sideways," he said later. "I think if I had hit one of the trees I would have killed myself."

Irwin had problems from the tee but said his inconsistency with his driver could be corrected by more tournament play.

"My game is really rounding out and headed where I want it to go," he said. "I am playing well with my irons and the only thing that is missing is the timing with my driver."

Baseball

Luis Tiant has signed a contract through the 1978 season and will honor the pact and could become a free agent after the 1978 season according to the Boston Red Sox pitcher's lawyer. Tiant, 21-13 last year, had been a holdout until last week, saying he wanted an extension on his contract.

The former Cuban pitcher made his 1977 debut Wednesday giving up two hits, a run and a walk in two innings.

Other baseball

Claiming that he has been permanently injured by former Baltimore Orioles outfielder Reggie Jackson, Irvin Weinglass has filed a $3 million suit against the baseball standout. Weinglass claims Jackson hit him repeatedly in the head and neck. Jackson is now with the New York Yankees.

Keith Jackson, Al Michaels and Werner Wolf will serve as sportscasters for ABC's Monday night baseball this season. Bob Uecker, Bill White and Bob Gibson will also broadcast for ABC.

The Kansas City Royals reduced their training camp squad to 33 players by sending five players to the minors.

Righthander Claudell Washington, one of only two regulars returning from last year's club, signed a three-year contract with the Oakland A's.

Baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn will meet with four New York congressmen to discuss his refusal to permit the New York Yankees to go to Cuba to play an exhibition game against a group of Cuban all-stars. Kuhn said such a game would give the Yankees an inside track on signing any Cuban players that might become available.

Other sports

The St. Louis Cardinals have signed former Nebraska lineman Keith Wortman to a series of three one-year NFL contracts. Under the terms of the new basic agreement between the owners and players association, the Cardinals matched an offer extended by an undisclosed club. Wortman, a 6-2, 250-pound guard, played out his option last year after he was obtained late in the season from the Green Bay Packers.

The 26 National Basketball Association referees, with a list of demands including more money and greater off-court freedom, might strike next month's league playoffs if their demands are not met.

Joe Stydahar, former NFL coach and Hall of Fame tackle died Wednesday in Beckley, W. Va., of an apparent heart attack, the Chicago Bears said Thursday.

Firing 66 strikes in nine frames, Charles "Bud" Debenham, a 55-year-old retired fireman from Los Angeles broke an 18-year-old American Bowling Congress tournament record by spilling 2,117 pins in the all-events. Debenham had a 716 in team, 748 in doubles, and 653 in singles.

A state court jury has convicted Louisiana State University football player Russell Domingue of attempted manslaughter in the stabbing of another LSU student during a fight following the LSU-Nebraska game last fall. Domingue, a linebacker who blocked a Nebraska field goal in preserving the 6-6 tie for LSU, was suspended from the team following the incident.

Paul Gregory Benedum, one of the founders of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes, died Wednesday of natural causes.

Huskers extend string to four Irving, Tex. — Despite freezing rain and temperatures here Thursday, the Nebraska baseball team stayed hot, stretching its win streak to four straight.

Terry Dopp and Jon Henne drove in five runs and freshman righthander Mike Hanson scattered five hits to help the Huskers top Southwest Minnesota State 10-2 in NU's first game Thursday at Dallas University.

In the second game junior first baseman Larry Winum drove in three runs and Steve Nagel and Jerry Yingling combined for five innings of shutout pitching to give NU its fourth straight win with an 8-1 victory over Dallas U.

The Huskers, now 5-3 with a pair of wins over Austin College Wednesday and an earlier victory over Baylor, scored one run in the first inning of the opener and then pulled away for the win.

In the second inning of the first game, Dopp, a senior centerfielder, drove in two runs with a single and then scored on a double by junior catcher Jon Henne.

Dopp finished the game two-for-four with three rbi and Henne collected three hits in four trips to the plate, scored two runs and drove in two runs with three hits.

Bob Mettling doubled, then went to third on a single by Dave Kuhlman, and scored on a double steal in the fourth inning for the Mustangs. Kuhlman then scored on a single by Don Culhane for the other SWMS run.

Hanson, now 1-0, gained the win, striking out five and walking six going the full seven innings. The Mustangs are now 0-9.

In the second game Winum put the Huskers ahead with a two-run double in the first inning. Steve McManaman then singled, driving in Winum, and scored on two consecutive errors by Dallas.

The Huskers, who committed no errors in the first game, had just one in the second game while Dallas suffered through seven errors.

Freshman Tim Carroll of Denver tripled for NU in the third, and Winum drove in another run in the three-run seventh inning.

Yingling, who was 3-0 last year, relieved Nagel in the third and hurled three innings of no-hit pitching, walking two and fanning one. Yingling is now 1-0.

Dallas' record fell to 5-19. Nebraska will face Dallas Baptist in a doubleheader in Dallas Friday, then face Dallas University in two games Saturday before returning to Lincoln for a home opener twinbill Tuesday against St. Cloud State.

Refs might strike NBA

New York (AP) — The 26 National Basketball Association referees, with a list of demands including more money and greater off-court freedom, might strike next month's league playoffs if their demands are not met.

Simon Gourdine, deputy commissioner of the NBA, said a work stoppage by the referees was a possibility.

"We have been confronted, but not directly by a strike threat," Gourdine said.

Gourdine said the league was contemplating several actions to insure referees at the playoffs.

Outdoor report

NORTHEAST — A few walleye and sauger to 3 pounds are being taken on minnows below Gavins Point Dam. Increased water releases from the dam have slowed snagging somewhat, but occasional limits of peddles to 15 pounds are still reported.

The waterfowl migration continues, with new flights of snow and blue geese coming through the area.

SOUTHEAST — Fishing pressure is light, but some anglers report success in Sandpits in northern Hamilton County are yielding crappie and bass, while Yankee Hill Lake in the Salt Valley is producing occasional catfish and walleye. The Missouri and Nemaha rivers and Burckard Lake are giving up some catfish on minnows and worms.

SOUTHWEST — The stilling basin below Harlan County Reservoir are yielding crappie and bass, while Yankee Hill Lake in the Salt Valley is producing occasional catfish and walleye. The Missouri and Nemaha rivers and Burckard Lake are giving up some catfish on minnows and worms.

PANHANDLE — Nine-Mile, Tub Springs and Kearney counties, sandpits opening into the Platte River are yielding catfish to 2 1/2 pounds on shed and dead minnows.

Racing commission backs Unicameral bill

By Mark Gordon
Staff Sports Writer

Grand Island — Harry Farnham is straightforward in discussing horse racing messenger betting services. "I'm opposed to it. We have a rule that covers that," said the chairman of the Nebraska State Racing Commission after a Thursday morning commission meeting here at Farnham Park. "We consider ourselves a creature of the legislature and we agree wholeheartedly with the legislature's approach," he said. "It's been tried in other jurisdictions and without a single exception, every jurisdiction that's tried it, either started out as an illegal operation or it's turned into an illegal operation. "Under the circumstances, it's had a terrible history," he added.

The commission, made up of Farnham, vice-chairman Duane Fudge of Newman Grove and Virginia Coffey of Orleans, unanimously approved a resolution in favor of LB523, a bill introduced in the Nebraska Unicameral Wednesday that would outlaw the use of messenger services to carry bets to race tracks.

The complete resolution reads: "Be it resolved that the Nebraska State Racing Commission expresses its unanimous support of LB523, a bill prohibiting the so-called 'messenger betting' services in the state of Nebraska — Just one reason being that the commission investigation has revealed that similar operations in other racing jurisdictions have in each and every case led to repeated violations of racing rules and criminal laws of that jurisdiction — resulting in great detriment to the thoroughbred racing and breeding industry — as well as considerable loss of income to the state."

Farnham, however, admitted he has not been aware of any problems with the "Pegasus" messenger service from downtown Omaha. That operation has been taking bets here since last Wednesday.

The Elkhorn attorney noted that Grant Stahnke of Lincoln apparently misunderstood him when he advised Stahnke on a messenger service in Lincoln. Stahnke has not yet opened his office in Lincoln.

"I told Grant the logical thing to do was to talk with Paul Douglas (Nebraska attorney general) and the Lancaster County attorney and that's what I advised him to do. I never said it was legal," he said.

The commission heard a proposal by executives from Ak-Sar-Ben in Omaha to change the rules to allow a stretch call and complete results and prices of each race on the radio 30 minutes after the race was declared official.

The present rule allows results and prices of the daily double and the broadcast of one race each day on the radio without prices.

"Arkansas, Colorado and California have programs like we propose," explained Stan Bowker, Ak-Sar-Ben's director of general activities. "We're trying to put together a network of stations and offer them nine programs each day. It'll be good for racing and the more information we can give, the better."

Bowker also said an Omaha television station would have a 10:30-11 p.m. program on Wednesdays during the Ak-Sar-Ben season explaining racing. "It won't be a how-to-bet show, but an educational thing," he said.

Atokad general manager Harold Smock, Columbus races general manager Warren Albert and Fanner Park general manager Al Swihart, spoke in favor of Ak-Sar-Ben's proposed change.

Later, the four track managers drafted a proposed change to the rule and it apparently will be approved by the commission so it can be in effect before the Ak-Sar-Ben races begin on May 3.

In other business, the commission reappointed all officers to their current positions for 1977.

Farnham was named chairman for the 15th straight year. "When I started on the commission, I was the youngest commissioner (35) in the country. Now, I may be the senior commissioner in term of service," Farnham said.

Fudge reported on his trip to Puerto Rico for the National Convention of State Racing Commissioners. "They take out 30 per cent of money at the track and another 10 per cent at the off-track betting parlors," he noted at the Puerto Rico track.

"Jesse James gave the people a better break than that," kidded Farnham of the 60 per cent of the mutuel pool returned to the public at betting parlors.

State Steward Jack Fickler of Ceresco termed the new open claiming rule, which became effective at this spring's Fanner meet a success. He said 27 applications have been received — 20 persons were former horse owners.

"It's working out better than I expected," Fickler said.

Under the new rule, any person approved by the stewards and the commission can claim a horse. Previously, only licensed horsemen with horses on the grounds could purchase horses from claiming races.

Finley would sell A's, if . . .

Chicago (UPI) — Charles O. Finley told the other major league baseball owners Thursday they could buy his Oakland A's with only one catch — keep the franchise in Oakland for the next decade.

At the same time Finley discounted reports a Pennsylvania "steelmaker" had made a serious offer to buy the A's and move them to Washington.

The A's owner stayed home in Chicago, talking to reporters, while other major league owners gathered in Tampa, Fla., to discuss an agenda which included transfer of franchises.

"I would be very happy to sell my baseball team with one stipulation," Finley said. "And that is they got to keep it in Oakland for 10 years."

Finley described as "a lot of garbage" reports he had had serious discussions with George Heiderman, Jenkintown, Pa., about selling the Athletics.

Finley said Heiderman had a "scrap yard," not a steel plant as reported, and had never "made a concrete offer." He said Heiderman had told him Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn and American League President Lee MacPhail had "directed" Heiderman to talk to Finley.

"I am interested in buying your club only if I can move it to Washington," Finley quoted Heiderman as saying in a telephone call.

Finley said he decided not to attend the Tampa meetings because "In the first place, they can't force me out of baseball. They are jealous. They can't compete with me."

Gordon picks 5 at Fonner

Mark Gordon's graded entries correctly selected five of the nine races on Thursday's program at Fanner Park in Grand Island.

The handicap picked the last five races, starting with Distuneful ($4.20) in the fifth, Quillo's Joe ($3.40) in the sixth (also the best bet), Friar Shuck ($7.60) in the seventh, Bill's Comet ($3.40) in the eighth and Prince Frib ($7.00) in the ninth.

It was a season's best for the handicap.

Valentino's in nationals

Omaha—Valentino's of Lincoln defeated Omaha Cannon's, 54-48, to capture the Midwestern regional AAU girls basketball tournament Wednesday night at Holy Cross School here.

East High's Barb Hart led the way for Val's with 15 points while Deb Van Dusen of Lincoln High added 12 more. Valentino's went 3-0 en route to the tourney victory.

The team now qualifies for the national AAU tourney, held in Nashville, Tenn., May 16-21.

NU, Alabama game on TV?

The chances are good ABC-TV will regionally televise the Nebraska-Alabama football game in Lincoln Sept. 17.

ABC-TV NCAA media director Donn Bernstein says the schedule will not be made official until next week, but added the NU-Tide game is "under strong consideration."

Nebraska's game against Oklahoma may also be televised.

New bat gives China edge in table tennis

Birmingham, England (UPI) — A revolutionary bat threatens to turn the 34th world table tennis championships starting Saturday into a runaway by the Chinese.

The Chinese launched a prototype bat at the 1975 championships in Calcutta and came away with both the men's and women's team titles.

Now the improved Mark 2 version of the Chinese puzzler will be in action at Birmingham where more than 500 players from a record entry of 67 countries take part in the world's biggest single sports event over 10 days of competition.

Records set in NCAA

Cleveland (UPI) — Joe Bottom, setting a record in the 50-yard freestyle, and strong second-place finishes by John Naber and Bruce Furniss, led USC's swimming juggernaut towards a fourth straight title Thursday in the 54th annual NCAA swimming and diving championships at Cleveland State University.

Bottom won the finals in :19.75, just off the :19.70 NCAA record he set in the preliminaries. Tim Shaw of Long Beach State beat Naber in the 500-yard freestyle in an American and NCAA-record 4:17.39, breaking his own record by nearly two seconds.

UNO schedules big prep meet

Omaha — UNO will host 35 high school track teams Friday and Saturday in an indoor meet. All finals for the meet will be Saturday except for the distance medley relay, long and triple jumps and shot put.

Fonner horse big winner

Grand Island — Bo Blue didn't waste much time in showing why he was made the favorite in the second race here Thursday at Fanner Park.

The 3-year-old gelding scooted to an early lead in the 6-furlong scamper for 3-year-old maidens, increased it to 12 entering the stretch and then won by 20 lengths in 1:16.

Veteran Daily Racing Form Nebraska correspondent Dean Williams said it was the largest victory margin he could remember at Fanner and was topped only by a 25-length winner several years ago at Columbus.

The pride of Mrs. Don Ladd and Mrs. Ken Harmon was ridden by Ken Jones.

As the 4-5 choice of the crowd of 4,559, he returned $3.60, $3.20 and $2.80. The Cornhusker Stables' Pour Le Merit, ridden by Perry Compton, placed for $19.00 and $8.40 and Russell McCord's Torro Tu showed for $10.00.

In the featured seventh race, M.A. Rust's Frair Shuck scored a one-length verdict over six foes to win the 6 1/2-furlong event for $18,000 claimers — the most expensive claimers ever run at Fanner.

As the 5-2 second-choice, he was ridden by Tim Doocy and paid $7.60, $6.40 and $3.80. Jack Gerdes' Speedmonger, a 21-1 outsider, placed for $11.20 and $4.60. H.V. Plunkett Jr.'s Ali Host showed for $2.40.

Nine jockeys each won one race.

48 drug sales warrants issued

The Nebraska State Patrol has begun a roundup of people who allegedly sold drugs to undercover agents in the past three to four months.

Warrants were issued Thursday for 48 people in Omaha, Lincoln and Norfolk as a result of continuing undercover operations, according to Capt. Lynn V. Parks, head of the patrol criminal division. The arrests, which were not related, involved all types of illegal drugs.

"These are all sellers and pushers," Parks said. "None of them are just possession cases."

Parks said 23 of the warrants were for people who allegedly sold drugs in Lincoln or Lancaster County. Only nine of those had been arrested Thursday, he said, because some are students and the University of Nebraska-Lincoln has spring vacation now.

About 12 people were in custody in Omaha, and five more had called police to turn themselves in, Parks said.

The first arrest in Omaha turned in bonus, he added. When officers went to a house to serve the warrant, they discovered half an ounce of cocaine, plus quantities of LSD, hash oil, marijuana and amphetamines.

Asked if the arrests had anything to do with a directive by the Legislature last week to concentrate on drug pushers, Parks replied: "We've always directed our efforts in that direction."

Risser to lead off final journalism mini-course

Associated Press

James Risser will lead off the final mini-course of three editor-in-residence programs being offered by the University of Nebraska-Lincoln School of Journalism.

Risser is a Lincoln native and has won seven major awards in the field of investigative reporting and coverage of public affairs. He is the Washington bureau chief for the Des Moines Register and Tribune.

Risser will be on the UNL campus Monday through Wednesday. He is an attorney and journalist and won the 1976 Pulitzer Prize for his reporting of illegalities in the nation's grain export program.

Other editors-in-residence this spring include:

—April 4-6: Wayne Vriesman, vice president and news director of WGN-TV, Chicago. He also is president of the Radio-Television News Directors Association International.

—April 11-13: Sidney R. Bernstein, Chicago, chairman of the executive committee of Crain Communications, Inc., which publishes Advertising Age.

—April 18-20: Turner Catledge, New Orleans, retired executive editor of the New York Times and author of "My Life and the Times."

2 nabbed in meat caper

Omaha (AP) — Two Detroit, Mich., men were arrested Thursday while selling meat door-to-door, and authorities confiscated and then destroyed between 800 and 900 pounds of meat that a detective said could have been "an extreme public health hazard."

The two men may be part of an operation that has been selling similar meat door-to-door in other midwestern cities, Omaha-Douglas County Health Department official Justin Dierks said.

The "think, breakfast-type strip steaks" were being peddled for less than $1.00 a pound, Dierks said. He said the meat had apparently been purchased by a cooperative at a Detroit wholesale outlet and transported to Omaha in an unrefrigerated van.

He said the meat bore no U.S. Department of Agriculture inspection stamps, was wrapped in brown paper and insulated with fiberglass.

Detective Robert Chamberlain said fiberglass dust had blown off the insulation onto much of the meat, and warned that anyone eating the steaks might also ingest the fiberglass dust.

The two men, identified as Jerry Lucas and Alphonse Hendrick, were charged with misdemeanor violation of the health code and released on $100 bond each, police said.

Vandals destroy trees at park

Vandals damaged or destroyed 13 trees at Mahoney Park, running over several with what Lincoln police believe may be a blue pickup truck.

Destroyed by vandals late Wednesday or early Thursday were five Colorado blue spruce, two pines and three flowering crabs. Three more crabs were damaged.

Most of the trees were 3 1/2 to 5 inches in diameter, police said.

Station wagon found stripped

A 1977-model station wagon was stripped of its wheels and tires in the outside lot of Goffredson Chrysler-Plymouth, 8350 O St.

An employee discovered the car on cement blocks Thursday morning, minus the $540 in equipment, police said.

Gum rumor slows sales

New York (UPI) — Consider this: A man, chewing a new brand of bubble gum, bit into a black widow spider. The eggs dropped into his stomach. They hatched and killed the man.

The story is not true, but a lot of kids think it or similar versions are, and many of them in the New York metropolitan area won't buy Bubble Yum.

Edward Morche, 10, a fourth-grader at Hillview School in New Providence, N.J., first heard it Feb. 23. He told his parents not to buy the gum for him or his 2-year-old sister. The government was going to ban the gum, he said.

Life Savers Inc., the makers of Bubble Yum, became so concerned they purchased full-page ads Wednesday and Thursday in 30 newspapers in the metropolitan area, telling parents "Someone is telling your kids very bad lies about a very good gum."

Letters with copies of the ads were mailed to school principals and PTAs.

William Mack Morris, president of Life Savers, said private investigators were hired to track the rumor to its source.

"Someone is frightening children and we have a corporate responsibility to try to stop this," he said. "I have two children and I don't like them being frightened."

The company acknowledges a drop in sales at the retail — but not the wholesale — level in the area. Morris said the rumor has not spread to other parts of the nation.

Stalin's daughter finds sunny life in California

New York (UPI) — The daughter of Soviet dictator Josef Stalin, who sought refuge in the United States 10 years ago, says she enjoys living in America "the middle-class way."

Svetlana Alliluyeva, now known as Lana Peters, said in an interview in the current issue of McCall's Magazine "I love California. I love the sun and the sea, and most of all I love the lifestyle. Everyone has his own style here. No one interferes. Such Diversity! No one cares whether anyone is watching. Each does his own thing. Watch or not — who cares?"

Mrs. Peters has settled down in a southern California town with her 5-year-old daughter, Olga, after getting a divorce four years ago from her husband, William Wesley Peters.

MAJOR STUDIO SNEAK PREVIEW TONIGHT AT 7:30 of a new and controversial super thriller that is sure to be the dramatic hit of 1977.

Come in today at either 6:15 or 8:00 and see two shows for the price of one.

SNEAK PREVIEW

Market's rally try fails

New York (AP) — The stock market recorded its sixth straight loss Thursday after a weak afternoon rally attempt gave way to renewed selling.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials closed at a 6.65 loss at 935.67, for a total drop of 32.33 points in the last six trading days.

Losers outpaced gainers by about a 7-4 margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow slipped about 3 points early in the day but then leveled off.

At mid-afternoon it crept up

Dow Ind. -6.65

to a minus -1.50 reading with some traders evidently doing a little cautious buying in the hope that President Carter's press conference would provide the spark for a rally.

Carter did tell reporters his anti-inflation program would be unveiled within a couple of weeks. And he reiterated his commitment to balance the federal budget by 1981.

But no strong buying interest developed on those comments, and traders appeared to give up on their hopes for a rally soon afterward, leaving the market in control of sellers toward the close.

Standard & Poor's index of 400 industrials gave up 58 to 110.82 S&P 500-stock index — the market indicator most commonly used by the currently popular "index" funds which seek to duplicate the performance of the general market — fell 50 to 99.70.

Eastman Kodak, also active, fell 1 1/2 to 68, touching a two year low.

MAT staff to study service cutbacks

Omaha (UPI) — The Metro Area Transit Board, faced with a cash flow problem, Thursday ordered the MAT staff to study methods of reducing services.

Jerome Erdman, MAT executive director, said if services continued at their present pace MAT would have an estimated $200,000 deficit by the end of the year.

At issue is an estimated $1.4 million still being held by the federal government because of a more than year-long dispute between MAT and the International Transport Workers Union and the U.S. Labor Department.

The Labor Department and the union want MAT to sign a model agreement pertaining to worker rights and benefits as a condition for receiving federal grants.

MAT has refused to sign the pact contending it would lose management rights and the cost of services would be increased.

Erdman said the pending cutback would mean the layoff of some MAT employees and the public could expect to see fewer buses available on daily routes.

The MAT board was expected to hold an emergency meeting within the next few weeks to consider the service reduction proposals.

Greenwood man fined

Associated Press

A Greenwood businessman who pleaded guilty to evading more than $15,000 in income taxes was sentenced to 30 days in prison and fined $5,000 Wednesday in U.S. District Court.

District Judge Warren Urbom also ordered two years, 11 months' probation for the man, Andrew J. Leadabrand, 68, owner of Greenwood Implement The Internal Revenue Service said Leadabrand is required to pay all additional taxes and penalties determined by the IRS.

Assistant U.S. Atty Richard Nolan said Leadabrand pleaded guilty to a charge of evading taxes in 1971. Nolan said Leadabrand reported $2,678 in taxable income, and $349 in taxes in 1971, instead of $64,414 taxable income and $15,401 in taxes.

With 4,600 hogs on offer, around 300 head U.S. 1-2 butchers weighing 210-230 pounds brought $37.25, while 1-3s weighing 200-240 pounds sold for $36.50-$37.00.

Sows sold steady to 50 cents lower, with the full decline on weights over 475 pounds. Offerings 300-600 pounds brought $33.00-$33.50.

Nebraskans attack welfare abuse

By Dean Terrell
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Beatrice — More than 100 Nebraskans came forth here Thursday to express themselves on welfare reform, mostly through wide-ranging questions.

Conducting individual or small-group interviews were nine high level officials from various agencies within the Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) Department. The so-called town hall meeting, a "one-on-one" innovation of the Carter administration, was intended as Nebraska's input toward emerging department policy.

"Welfare reform has been identified as the top priority within HEW, but it's a topic which generates a broad array of opinion," said Richard E. Burnett of Kansas City, acting regional director for the four states of Nebraska, Iowa, Kansas and Missouri.

"The level of benefits is probably as critical as any of our problems. The recipients generally want it higher, while the conservatives take quite a different view."

With a cross-section of citizenry present from at least a dozen counties, strong feelings were registered on topics ranging from day care centers to Social Security work limitations. Three persons even chartered a plane from Chadron, some 400 miles to the northwest.

Dr. Pat Caruthers, regional director for urban and community education in the Office of Education, said one common thread running through her interviews dealt with "alleged abuses throughout the whole welfare system. With senior citizens prominent in the attendance, they especially lashed out at the young unemployed."

"Working people also say it really makes them angry to look at their paycheck deductions while so many are sitting home," said Dr. Caruthers.

"They're concerned that work appears no longer honorable. The whole idea seems to be to beat the system."

A four member delegation from Richardson County voiced particular concern with difficulties in obtaining emergency welfare help. "It's a problem with everything from braces for a child's teeth to the shutting off of fuel," said Mrs. Virginia Stouffer of Falls City, an outreach worker for the Southeast Nebraska Community Action Agency.

The four also termed it "unfair and ridiculous" that persons are ineligible for Medicaid and Supplemental Security Income (SSI) if they own more than $1,500 in liquid assets.

Two board members of the Blue Rivers Area Agency on Aging (BRAAA), Ed Cording of Hebron and Willard Gumaer of Fairbury, were upset at HEW for backing down on a 75% grant for a three-county Handi-Bus operation. A smaller but equally important amount had affected the L. E. Hendersons of Beatrice, both in their 80s and Social Security recipients.

"Prescription drug prices apparently have risen by about 300% just this spring," the couple said. "We couldn't believe it when our druggist charged $21 for a medication, so we quit him and went to another one. He charged $29."

Dr. Caruthers sat in virtual disbelief as one delegation told of a woman badly in need of surgery who was repeatedly refused hospital admittance because welfare funds were not available.

"This is typical of what happens," the HEW official was told. "If you don't have either the money or insurance, hospitals just won't admit you."

Another principal concern, according to Dr. Burnett, is the question of whether welfare dollars are "actually getting to the people who need them most."

LES now faces class action suit

A Lincoln woman's lawsuit against Lincoln Electric System over a threatened power shutoff became a class action suit Thursday in U.S. District Court.

The controversy involves a disputed electrical bill of $41.54 which Gilda Street says she paid in cash at the LES office in November 1975. LES says she did not pay the bill.

LES threatened to shut off Ms. Street's electricity last August over the disputed bill, but U.S. District Court Judge Warren K. Urbom issued a temporary restraining order against the power company. LES has since agreed not to shut off Ms. Street's power until the lawsuit is settled.

Ms. Street complained that LES does not provide a hearing before an impartial official or board prior to turning off a customer's power.

Urbom ruled Thursday that all persons who have had their power disconnected by LES may be included in the class action suit.

The judge ruled, however, that a request to involve all persons who might have their power disconnected in the future was too broad a description for the court to accept.

A hearing on the case is set for March 30.
